TAKING OF CENSUS OF ST. LOUIS TO BEGIN ON APRIL 2

750 Enumerators to List Residents of City and County in Government's 15th Compilation.

COUNT TO BE MADE KNOWN BY WARDS

Mandatory for People to Answer All Questions—Disclosure of Data Is Forbidden by Law.

One week from next Wednesday, April 2, about 750 enumerators will begin the decennial census to count the people of St. Louis and St. Louis County. The census will be taken simultaneously throughout the nation during a period of two weeks. It will be the 15th census of the United States, the first one having been taken in 1790. But for the supervision of some persons about April 1, 1929, it would start on April 1.

In 1929 the last census gave St. Louis a population of 772,397 and St. Louis County 109,737, a total of 882,134. Civic organizations anticipate that the joint population the year will be well in excess of 1,000,000.

Put at $48,000 in 1928. The Census Bureau estimated the city's population at $48,199 in 1928 and the Chamber of Commerce estimated it at $57,429 last year. The county, it is generally thought, has more than 200,000 inhabitants now, having been going up with remarkable rapidity, especially in University City and other suburban sections. In 1900 St. Louis had 575,238 residents.

For purposes of the census, the city is divided into 12 wards, and the county into 12 independent districts of the state, each under a supervisor responsible to the bureau at Washington. One, the Eighth District, embraces wards 1, 15, 16, 17 and 18, and the 21st city district, and Central and St. Ferdinand townships in the county. Richard Hassell, an insurance agent of Shrewsbury, is supervisor. The other districts are: Ninth, wards 2 through 14 and 18 and 19 in the city, and Carondelet, Bonneville and Meramec townships in the county. Henry A. Kersting, a lawyer of 3577 Utah place, is supervisor.

Mandatory to Answer Questions. It is mandatory for the people to answer the questions of the census. For those who may misunderstand and refuse to answer, it is provided that the supervisor shall make a special visit. If they will not answer him, the District Attorney must be notified and in extreme cases he may take action against recalcitrant ones for misdemeanor. The law prohibits disclosure of the information obtained by the census, as to individuals, and the data is employed only for general statistics. No other governmental agency even may have access to the statistics on population, farm values and incomes, commercial sales and so on.

A white paper form, measuring 14x22 1/2 inches, to carry information about 100 persons, will be used by the enumerators. It contains 22 question columns to be filled out, of which 27 must be answered for each person by some member of the household, an instance, as in hotels and institutions, individual slips may be left for absent persons to fill out.

After data as to the address, name and relationship of the individual to the head of the family, sex, race, age at last birthday, marital conditions and age at first marriage, there are the following questions: Is home owned or rented? Value or monthly rental? Does the family have a radio?—a question, not of interest in the last census. Has person attended school or college since Sept. 1, 1929? Can he read and write? What state or foreign country was he born? What language did foreign-born person speak at former home? When did an immigrant come to this country? Is he naturalized? Can he speak English? What trade, profession or business? Employer, wage work, or working on own account or unpaid member of the family? Was the person actually at work on the regular working day before the enumerator's call? Of what war or expedition, if any, is he a veteran? (Symbols are provided for the World, Spanish-American and Civil Wars, the Philippine Insurrection, the Boxer rebellion and the Mexican border expedition.) The unemployment schedule, a separate smaller sheet, is expected to produce statistics of particular interest this year. It will show whether a person who was not at work the day before the enumeration, if he usually works at a certain occupation, was absent because of sickness, discharge, strike, loss of work, bad weather or for some other reason.

Many Casualties in Fire. THUNDER, Perla, March 20.—Several lives were lost and many persons injured in a fire reported from Banharjia on the Caspian sea in which 294 houses were destroyed. Figures as to the exact number of casualties varied.

SAYS C. H. HOWARD AND OTHERS GOT PATENT ROYALTIES

send it back and forget it, which I assure you I shall be glad to do. There has been no evidence offered to date of Stout's making such a request.

"One thing I am glad about is that this indicates a faithful fulfillment of a certain obligation you and I have assumed," Howard's letter continues, "and which requires us to say such things to a brother and not about him."

This was followed by an avowal that Howard had urged Stout to acquire the stock thinking he was doing a good turn to a member of the Commonwealth family. Figures showing the appreciation of Stout's stock are set forth. Then the following concluding admonition:

"Now, Billy, think this over and the first time we have an opportunity, let's get together and talk things over because I feel sure in a few minutes we can clear the atmosphere and see things in their true light."

"You know, sometimes our windows get dirty and we do not have sufficient light, but pretty soon the window washer comes along and we find that the good old sunshine was trying to get through all the time. With kindest regards to you and Mother Stout, etc."

This postscript follows: "Billy, I found by listening to my dear mother I always got along fine. Show the dear little mother. You might better let her help guide you. She is one of God's most lovable women."

Calious to Sentiment. Stout, from his correspondence, seemed immune to the sentimental note struck by the letters of Howard and George K. Hobbitts, vice president and treasurer, and suggested to the latter that if there had to be sentiment, he felt he (Stout) should get the benefit of it, as he had been sacrificing his energies in war service while the Commonwealth was enjoying one of its peak years in 1918.

One of Hobbitts' letters is considered important by the plaintiff's counsel, in that it tends to establish their contention, vigorously denied by the defendants, that the Commonwealth started on a shoe string. As has been told, it sold out to its successor last year for $35,000,000.

Hobbitts wrote Stout, in part, in 1919, as follows: "Practically all of W. E. S. stock (W. E. is the acquaintance referred to by Stout who sold his stock for a high figure), if not all of it, was purchased at a time when the company was insolvent and it was a pure business hazard whether it could succeed or fail." Howe's main contention is that one of his inventions, a mold for casting locomotive and car frames in one piece, was the keystone on which the company's prosperity was built. He contends he frequently was promised compensation of some sort but never got it. The defense argues that the importance of the invention is exaggerated and that, anyway, Howe merely followed a time-honored

SEEKS ESTATE OF MAN MISSING 33 YEARS

Daughter of J. M. Lawrence Wants $25,000, but Wife He Deserted Nothing.

"Well, boys, I've been done wrong and that's right." Mrs. Catherine England smoothed the folds of her checked gingham apron, and sometimes laughing, occasionally wiping tears from her eyes, came for a moment, then quickly indignant, related to reporters today the story of the disappearance of her first husband 33 years ago and her remarkable five years later after she had been informed he was dead.

The husband, Benjamin M. Lawrence, died in Lyons, Ill., near Chicago, in 1897. Mrs. England returned from Chicago yesterday after testifying in the Probate Court action of her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Markuley, 3019 North Union boulevard, to get control of Lawrence's estate, estimated to be valued at $25,000.

Doesn't Want His Money. "It's my daughter's money," she continued. "I'll have none of it. If I was hungry, like when he left me, I might try to get it. I don't want any of his money. It's in peace and quiet I want to live the little time I have left."

"It was in 1890 I married him. We lived together and he provided me a good living as far as that's concerned, but in 1897—it was in February and on a Friday night, well I remember—we had supper and after supper he picked up and left without a word. I don't know why."

"I never saw him again, or heard from him or had the scratch of a pen from him. He left me with only $4 and owing a month's rent, $7. He left me with two little ones to look after, a girl and a boy, and another one coming along. I had a girl the next August."

Told Her Husband Had Died. "About three years after he disappeared, I met a fellow called Yankee Webbe on Fourteenth and Cass that used to work with him and he says, 'Your husband's dead and buried in Chicago.'"

"I was working then, taking in washing and doing scrubbing. My sister was helping me with a little money. Then I met England through my brother-in-law and we were married. We got along. We've got four grown boys. I hear it's $25,000 he left. If I stayed single, I'd got all, but I'm glad I didn't."

She smiled at her husband, John L. England, retired contractor, with whom she lives at 1831A Cass avenue, and continued, telling of the visit two weeks ago, of a Chicagoan whose business it is to locate missing heirs. She told the investigator she didn't want Lawrence's money, but that she thought Mrs. Markuley, the survivor of Lawrence's three children, was entitled to it.

Sister Opposes Claim. Mrs. England took with her to Chicago, a photostatic copy of St. Louis marriage license records and proved beyond doubt, she thinks, that she was married to Lawrence. A sister of Lawrence, Mrs. Joseph Shafraan, was in court and opposed the claim of Mrs. Markuley, Mrs. England said.

CONFERENCE IN BUS STRIKE LIKELY TONIGHT OR TOMORROW

Both City Utilities and Union Representatives Are Hopeful of Settlement.

A conference between Richard W. Meade, president of the People's Motorbus Co., and representatives of 750 striking employees probably will be held tonight or tomorrow, it was announced this afternoon following a telephone conversation between Col. A. T. Perkins, representative of the City Utilities Co., and William E. Fitzgerald, international vice president of the Amalgamated Association of Electric Railway Employees and Motor Coach Operators, who is directing the strike. No buses were operated today, the seventh day of the strike.

The City Utilities Co., which controls the Public Service Co., owns the People's Motorbus Co. Both Fitzgerald and Perkins are hopeful of establishing a basis for a settlement. The strikers, who are demanding recognition of their union, held their daily meeting this morning and continue to picket the garages of the company.

STEAMER SAILS WITH BODIES OF EIELSON AND BORLAND

American Legion Pays Tribute to Myers as Yessel Departs for Seattle.

JUNEAU, Alaska, March 20.—Bearing the bodies of Carl Ben Eielson and East Borland, who were killed in an airplane crash in Siberia last November, the Steamer Alaska sailed yesterday for Seattle.

The American Legion Post gathered at the dock to pay tribute to the two flyers after which "laps" was blown. Gov. George A. Parks thanked the two Russian and three Canadian flyers who are accompanying the bodies to Seattle for aiding in the three months' search for Eielson and Borland.

A delegation of Russian residents welcomed Commander Mavrik Shilov and Fabian Naring, who, with Americans and Canadians, have accompanied the bodies on the journey from North Cape, Siberia, near where the bodies were found.

INQUIRY BEGUN INTO COST OF NEW COURTHOUSE CHANGES

Grand Jury, Accompanied by Circuit Attorney, Inspects Building; to Hear Testimony.

The grand jury this afternoon began its investigation of the cost to the city of recent changes in space assignments in the New Civil Courthouse.

The jurors inspected the building, accompanied by Circuit Attorney Miller, Assistant Circuit Attorney Lennon, Circuit Judge Calhoun, who ordered the jury to inquire into the matter, and President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, who explained details to the visitors.

Next Tuesday and Thursday the grand jury will hear testimony.

Under another of Lawrence's sisters, Mrs. Ann Sharkey, had testified in favor of Mrs. Markuley.

Mrs. England, who is 68, turned toward her husband, who had sat quiet during the recital, "After this is all cleared up," she concluded, "we'll be after settling our affairs. I don't know whether we'll get married again. We were married once and once ought to be enough."

HEAD OF BIGGEST BANK ONLY 44 YEARS OLD

W. W. Aldrich, Rockefeller Lawyer, Led Fight That Ousted Col. R. W. Stewart.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, March 20.—Winthrop W. Aldrich, 44 years old, who is slated to become president of the world's largest bank—the merged Chase National—thought to be the youngest head of the larger financial institutions in this country, if not in the world.

The new Chase National, through merger with the Equitable Trust Co. and the Interstate Trust Co., will have total resources of approximately $3,000,000,000. It takes first rank from the National City, with the Midland Bank of London third, followed by Lloyd's and by the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York.

Aldrich was elected president of the Equitable, a Rockefeller bank, after the sudden death of C. A. Austin last December. He had been a director of the Equitable only three months before his election and his succession to the presidency came as a surprise to many in the banking field.

Rockefeller Attorney. The comparatively youthful banking executive, who was born in Providence, R. I., Nov. 2, 1885, is a son of the late Nelson W. Aldrich, former United States Senator from Rhode Island; is a brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., was personal attorney for the Rockefeller family for 20 years, and has been noted as a corporate lawyer.

He led the Rockefeller forces in 1925 in their fight to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart from control of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. The battle against Col. Stewart was made at the behest of Mr. Rockefeller Jr., because of the attitude adopted by the former toward the Senate investigation of the oil scandals.

A graduate of Harvard University, class of 1907, Aldrich obtained his degree from Harvard Law School three years later and was admitted to the New York Bar in 1912. He was a former member of the law firm of Byrne, Cutcheon & Taylor, counsel for the New York Trust Co. and at present is a member of the law firm of Murray, Aldrich & Webb, for 25 years counsel for the Equitable Co. His experience as a legal adviser to large New York banks has thus been extensive.

During the war Aldrich served as a lieutenant in the United States Naval Reserve, acting as navigating officer of the U. S. S. Niagara. It was at the conclusion of the war that he entered the firm of which he is now a member.

His Many Activities. Aldrich, a director of the Bankers Trust Co. and the Equitable Eastern Banking Corporation, also holds directorships in the Denver & Rio Grande Western, Rio Grande Junction and the Western Pacific railroads.

He is a trustee of the Spellman Fund and the New York Orthopedic Hospital, a director of the Legal Aid Society and the Bureau of Social Hygiene and a member of the Board of Managers of the State Charities Aid Association.

Advances $5-cent School Tax.

The Twenty-seventh Ward Republican League unanimously urged the retention of the $5-cent school tax at a meeting at its headquarters, 5811 Easton avenue, last night. Howard Cook, a member of the Board of Education, spoke for the tax. William C. Marten, president of the league, presided. About 150 members were present.

Communists Attack Russian Paper. WARSAW, Poland, March 20.—A group of communists last night attacked the printing shop and office of the Russian Emigre newspaper Zvezda. They broke the windows of the plant but escaped before police arrived.

Mother of 5 Jailed on Dry Charge.

PAIR SAY THEY NAMED WRONG MAN IN ATTACK

Complainants Against Kirkwood Contractor Make Affidavits They Were Mistaken.

Charges of highway robbery and criminal assault against Henry Venneman, 61-year-old painting contractor of Kirkwood, probably will be dismissed as the result of affidavits made yesterday by the complainants to the effect that they had erred in identifying him.

Prosecuting Attorney Castlen of St. Louis County, who took the affidavits, said that Arthur Lens, 20-year-old grocery clerk, and his young woman companion, had sworn that Venneman was not the man who held them up near Kirkwood the night of Feb. 24. Venneman's general demeanor and his manner of walking with a slight limp had caused them to withdraw their previous identification, Castlen said.

Castlen intends to investigate the affidavits before the case is called for a preliminary hearing March 26. He will dismiss the charge if the result of the investigation is satisfactory. Venneman, the father of seven children, and active in Kirkwood politics, is at liberty under a $10,000 bond. He has denied the charge.

COURT GRANTS SEPARATION TO PRINCE OF MONACO

He Is to Have Custody of Children Half the Year, His Wife the Other Half.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, March 20.—High Court of Monaco today pronounced a separation of Prince Pierre and Princess Charlotte of Monaco. Under the separation each is to have custody of the children one-half of each year.

Prince Pierre and Princess Charlotte were married on March 19, 1920. They have two children, Princess Antoinette, who is 9 years old, and Prince Rainier, who is not quite 7.

Princess Charlotte is the daughter of Prince Louis, reigning Prince of Monaco.

The judgment was based on an arbitration agreement proposed by Raymond Poincaré, who acted in his capacity of private lawyer. It recognizes important financial interests for Prince Pierre, but admits that he will no longer be obliged to live in the principality which was taken in some quarters as a suggestion that he had better live elsewhere.

OUT OF WORK, ENDS HIS LIFE

While his wife and three children looked on, John Higgins, 36 years old, a chauffeur, drank poison last night in his home at 1023 Ann avenue, and died on the way to City Hospital.

His wife said he had been despondent because he had not been able to find steady employment for more than a year.

that destruction is just around the corner. The sugar men have said that they are already going into bankruptcy. Now the great lumber industry calls for help.

"Everybody is going to destruction. Everybody is in the lumps. What is the remedy offered? It is 'Tax the necessities of life.' Big business says: 'Give us a tariff and everybody will be happy.' But how are we to lift ourselves by our bootstraps? Such a thing is economically impossible."

"We are now asked to tax the home, the barn, the chair, the table, the wooden bed, the washbox and the hog pen. All this, we are told, is for the benefit of the farmer and the laboring man. We are asked to increase the price of everything they buy. By levying a tax on lumber we are putting a burden on every young couple who want to own their own home. We make them mortgage their future."

"A wise legislator ought to be glad to use the other fellow's lumber whenever he can. He should want to preserve something for the children who are to follow. We put a tax on this product. Our children will look over our wasted timber lands and ask why their forefathers did not preserve what once was a great natural resource."

The debate on lumber was opened by Senator Jones of Washington, author of the amendment for the $1.50 duty. When he denied that there had been any "deal" for lumber through trades with oil, sugar and cement combination, Walsh (Dem.), Massachusetts, declared that, while he believed that Jones had not participated in any trades, there were some "very suspicious circumstances" surrounding recent votes in the Senate.

"These things," Walsh said, "have shaken belief that Senators have voted according to their convictions."

Jones accepted an amendment to his proposal, made by Copeland (Dem.), New York, exempting from the $1.50 tax certain rough lumber from Mexico and Canada. Senators Nye of North Dakota and Glass of Virginia attacked the proposed duty. The fiery Virginian declared that for every lumber mill there were a thousand home builders.

"We are about to tax everything the poor man uses," said Glass. "He will be taxed from the cellar to the roof. We have even taxed cement and brick in the name of farm relief."

"If the building industry is depressed, how do you propose to revive it by putting a tax on lumber? And how can we make the poor man happier and more prosperous if we increase the cost of his living?"

Walsh replied that he was not a pessimist, but that he was a realist.

JURY TAMPERING CONFESSIONS IN JULIAN OIL CASE

Los Angeles Prosecutor to Seek Indictment of Five or More in "Outrageous Bribery Scheme."

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 20.—
Declaring that he has confessions or admissions of guilty participation in "the most outrageous bribery scheme ever uncovered in this county," District Attorney Buron Fitts today sought indictments against five or more persons involved in alleged jury tampering in connection with the $100,000-000 Julian Petroleum Corporation fraud case.

Fitts said he would ask the grand jury to indict, among others, Sheridan C. Lewis, former president of the Julian company. Lewis was arrested yesterday on a charge of suspicion of conspiracy to offer
and give a bribe to a juror.
Others taken into custody for investigation in connection with the latest Julian upheaval are Jacob Berman, Julian company officer;
Louis Krause and J. H. Weaver, alleged juror bribers; Frank G.
Grider, John B. Groves, Mrs. Bertie A. Shook, Mrs. Agnes C. Hackett and Mrs. Carolina Love, members of the jury which acquitted
the 10 Julian principals of fraud in 1928.

More than a score of witnesses are held in technical custody until they testify before the grand jury.
Chief among the developments growing out of Fitts' investigations is a confession from Berman in which he admitted he had bribed two jurors, Grider and Groves, for their votes of "not guilty" in the Julian trial. Berman said the bribes were made through Krause, whom he knew to be a "juror fixer." He said the bribes were consummated through the purchase for $15,000 of a house from Grider, and the payment of $5000
cash to Groves.

"I promised I would tell the whole story of this Julian affair from start to finish, and this jury bribery was part of it," Berman told Fitts. "It was my money, $15,000 of it, that went to buy juror Grider's home, and I personally,
in company with Louis Krause, gave Juror Groves $5000 in $100
bills."

Mrs. Love, another juror, admitted she had been approached by Weaver, acting as agent for Lewis, and had agreed to accept $20,000
"if I found I could conscientiously vote a verdict of acquittal." She said the deal did not go through,
however, and she received no money from any source.

"Partial confessions" and "damaging admissions" received from others questioned will be presented to the grand jury, Fitts said.

Asa Keyes, who was District Attorney when the Julian trials were held, is serving a sentence of from one to 14 years for accepting bribes in the case.

MAKERS OF CANCER SERUM DESCRIBE USE

Dr. Coffey and Dr. Humber
Explain Their Experiments
to St. Louis U. Class.

How their new serum, made from sheep glands, caused the disintegration of cancerous tissue in 1200 patients was told yesterday
by Dr. Walter B. Coffey and Dr.
John B. Humber, of San Francisco, before the senior class of the St. Louis University Medical School.

The physicians stopped in St.
Louis on their way west, after appearing before a United States Senate committee to describe their experiments with the new serum
and to ask for Federal aid in fighting cancer. They departed for San Francisco last night.

Both physicians, in discussing the serum, made it plain they did not claim, and had never claimed the discovery of a cancer-cure. At the same time, they reported unusual success in eliminating cancerous tissues in cases given up as hopeless.

Deplores "Unfortunate Publicity."
"Our work is still in the experimental stage," Dr. Coffey, chief surgeon of Southern Pacific Hospital in San Francisco, said. "We would have wished at least another year before we made known the result of our research. But our hand was really forced. Word got around that we had discovered an important serum for the treatment of cancer. There was talk here and talk there. Finally we went before the Pathological Society of San Francisco and told of our work."

"Since then, wide publicity has been given the serum. There has been some unfortunate publicity about a cancer 'cure' which we deplore. Briefly, let me sum up our theories and the results of our work thus far."

All Tests With Human Beings.
"We believe that cancer is a systemic, constitutional disease.
It is characterized, we know, by an unchecked, wild growth of cells.
Several years ago Dr. Humber and I began our experiments, looking for a possible stabilizer of cell growth. Now, after many years, we have been able to produce a potent extract made from the cortex (outer layer) of the suprarenal glands. This extract functions, we believe, as a stabilizer of cell growth."

"It is our belief that an individual contracts cancer when he is deprived of this stabilizing agency. All our experiments have been with human beings. In every case we have demonstrated a complete medical history of the patient, taking only cancer cases considered beyond hope of successful treatment by radium, the knife, or the X-ray. Subcutaneously, far from the malignant growth, we have injected the serum, and have produced reactions, usually within five hours, and in some cases not before 24, 48 or 72 hours."

"The usual reaction is for the cancerous growth to soften, to begin sloughing, to disintegrate. We continue the injections twice weekly. As photographs show, the cancer cells have disintegrated and disappeared, leaving only normal tissue cells. We do not know whether this elimination of cancerous tissue is permanent. We continue to give the injections.
Whether this extract is like insulin, and will have to be given periodically, after it affords relief, remains to be seen. It is one of the things we have not cleared up. We have cases, dating back three years, in which the cancer cells have been eliminated and have not returned."

Still Experimenting.
"We are still experimenting with the dosage. Now we give one drop of extract the first time. The dosage is graded up to 16 drops.
The actual extract we use is made from the cortex of the suprarenal glands of sheep. It takes about 1500 sheep to make eight ounces of the extract. However, we have

UTAH WIFE MURDERER CHOOSES FIRING SQUAD

Delbert Green, 21, to Die for Killing Mate, Her Mother, Stepfather.

By the Associated Press.
SALT LAKE CITY, March 20.—
A firing squad at the Utah State Prison will execute Delbert Green, 21-year-old slayer of his wife, her mother and her stepfather.
Green yesterday chose death by shooting rather than hanging.
Execution was set for May 17 by Judge Eugene H. Pratt, holding court at Farmington. Previously the judge passed the death sentence, which was mandatory, and overruled a motion for a new trial.
Green followed his wife to her mother's home near Layton, Utah, last January. After she had refused to return with him to their home at Ogden, he shot and killed her and her mother as they lay in bed with his infant child, then killed his father-in-law, who also was his uncle. The baby, together with Green's nine-year-old sister-in-law and his aged grandmother, escaped.
He pleaded insanity at his trial.
Records at the penitentiary, going back to 1855, show that two men were executed in that year and that at intervals since then, 23 others have paid the death penalty. All but one or two of these, prison officials said, chose to be shot.

The last firing squad execution
was in 1926, when Ed McGowan, a Negro convicted of murder in Carbon County, was shot.

Five men, all volunteers, will comprise the firing squad, under Utah law. Responsibility for selection lies with the sheriff of the county in which the crime was committed. On execution day the sheriff, or a deputized person, brings the five men to the State prison, in a closed car. The identity of the men is held secret.

A curtain is hung between the condemned man and the firing squad. Five rifles are stacked in a selected position. Five portholes are cut in the curtain through which the rifles are aimed at a black target placed over the heart.
Four weapons are loaded; the fifth has blank cartridges. The five men march by, select a rifle and take up their firing position at the portholes. None of the five knows which rifle has blank cartridges.
At a given signal, the five rifles crack. One shot each is fired.

DISCOVERERS OF CANCER SERUM

experimented also with the supra-renal glands of human beings.

"We have made this interesting observation. Extract made from the suprarenal glands of a person in normal health, who was killed in an accident, let us say, is potent, effective extract. It shows the stabilizing power. But extract made from the suprarenal glands
of a person who died of malignant cancer is not effective. We cannot make extract from it.

"Again, let me remind you we do not claim a cancer cure. About that time only can tell. We are still experimenting."

Dr. Humber described in detail certain cases treated and showed photographs of patients, in whom cancerous tissue had been broken down and eliminated. Dr. Humber said that the extract, at this time,
was not available for distribution,
because it was, in certain respects,
in the experimental stage. He said it would not be manufactured for public use until such time as the American Medical Association had approved it. Three laboratories, under supervision, were now producing the serum, Dr. Humber said.

The suprarenal or adrenal glands are on the kidneys, and near the spinal column. Adrena-lin, a powerful extract, used to contract blood vessels, also is obtained from these glands. The extract prepared by Coffey and Humber, however, is made exclusively from the yellow covering or outer layer of the glands. Adrenalin produces a rise in blood pressure.

Coffey and Humber report that their extract lowers blood pressure
—if it is high—to normal. The new extract also seems to produce a new blood supply, Humber says.

"K-4" of Secret Service Talks of Three Presidents

H. C. Keyes, 16 Years in the Executive Bodyguard, Relates Anecdotes About Wilson, Harding and Coolidge.

The man who was K-4 of the United States Secret Service for 16 years and who shadowed three presidents before he resigned in 1925 to go in business for himself under his own name of Harold C. Keyes, told homely anecdotes about Woodrow Wilson, Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge in a Wednesday Club address last night.

The personalities of the three presidents, as seen through the eyes of the eight men who constantly dogged their footsteps, were sketched by Keyes. He repeated stories about Wilson and Harding only to explode the widely-circulated myths with the recital of his own observations.

Harding he described as a drinker who injured his own health by "climbing on the wagon" when he entered the White House, maintaining the habit of a Wednesday night poker game as a diversion. Coolidge was economical, and "the wisest man I ever knew," the speaker said.

Keyes described his presidents chronologically. William H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, had anticipated that Roosevelt would win in 1912 and had sent Keyes and seven other agents to New York to form his bodyguard.

Wilson Resented Intrusion. "When we saw the headlines in the New York papers we had to turn around and go into the wilds of New Jersey to locate Wilson," Keyes related. "He resented our coming and frankly told us so. He told me to take my men and get back to Washington. I told him as firmly and politely as I could that the Secret Service took no orders from the President."

"He made us wait on the porch while he telephoned Washington. After a while his secretary came out and invited us into Wilson's study. 'As long as I have to put up with you fellows, I'll try to make you as comfortable as possible,' he said."

"It was the next week in New York City that a crank with a rather wicked knife tried to get at the President-elect. Ferguson of the detail did the logical thing and put him on his back. If it had not been for Ferguson, Wilson would never have seen the White House."

At Washington, Keyes continued, Wilson proved a very mild and considerate man, "nothing like the man we met in Jersey."

Keyes discussed gossip about Wilson which involved allegations that he was inconsiderate of his wife and hasty in his second marriage. "I remember the first Mrs. Wilson very well," said Keyes. "There wasn't any time that Mr. Wilson would not leave the executive office and hurry to the White House if it would help her bear her suffering."

"During the year or two that he courted Mrs. Galt he called on her twice a week, always with eight men at his heels as the law requires. Seven Secret Service men patrolled the grounds outside Mrs. Galt's home and I watched inside the house, sitting by the door of the living room where they were talking."

Harding Quit Liquor but Not Poker. Harding, Keyes continued, "came into the White House with the

when he arrived he said, 'Well, Mac, I'm optimistic tonight; guess I'll take some of your money away from you.' McLean suggested, 'You'd better shove your pay-entelope under the door and go get a good night's sleep.'"

Harding's weakness was in his loyalty to his friends, Keyes de-

YOUR ST. LOUIS

How well Do You Know It?

BARNES HOSPITAL
"A hospital for sick and injured persons without distinction of creed." This direction in the will of Robert A. Barnes, the trustees have tried to carry out to the fullest extent.
How have they succeeded?
Since the opening of the Hospital, in 1915, more than 50,000 patients, professing more than twenty religious beliefs and creeds, have been cared for in the hospital.
Young men are being trained in medicine and surgery; young women in nursing, dietetics and anaesthesia. This has been a benefit to the individuals, the community and the hospital.
Research to increase the total fund of medical information has been constantly in progress. Outstanding work has been done on liver and gall-bladder functions, on diseases of the chest, the brain, heart, kidneys, nose and throat, asthma and allied conditions, twilight sleep anaesthesia and other problems.
In spite of the setbacks already accomplished, there has always been a greater demand for the service of the Hospital than its resources would permit.
The Trustees of Barnes Hospital greatly appreciate the donations from the Community Fund and Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, and from individuals, but further gifts are needed if the Hospital is to function to its fullest extent.
Follow this series—It directs your attention to the institutions which are responsible for the growth and progress of St. Louis.

FORMER SECRET SERVICE AGENT TELLS ANECDOTES ABOUT 3 PRESIDENTS

clared. "No friend of mine is a crook or disloyal until he admits it himself," he quoted Harding. Keyes discussed two books, Van Britton's "President's Daughter," and Samuel Hopkins Adams, "Revelry." The latter had some measure of truth, he declared but "there was not a true statement in the 'President's Daughter'."

Keyes discussed President Harding's death, quoting his colleague, Ferguson, who had accompanied the President on his last tour while Keyes remained in Washington.

"I shook hands with Harding as he sat in an automobile at the White House and remarked that I would see him when he returned," Keyes related. "He turned his head away and I heard him murmur to himself, 'I'm not coming back.'"

Lord Harding's Death to Piomane. "After Harding's death in the West I waited anxiously for the return of Ferguson, who said: 'They gave him a banquet and they tried to select the best Columbia River salmon. But they selected the worst and he got a bad case of ptomaine and died. He refused to allow the use of a stomach pump and he refused medicine.'"

Saw Coolidge Take Oath. "It was Keyes who was sent to take up the duty of guarding the new President, Coolidge. By special trains and automobiles he arrived at the New England home in time to see the oath administered. Using a nasal tone, he quoted the new President's remark, 'Well, it's getting late; let's go to bed.' after the ceremony was concluded."

Hiding in Harding's funeral procession, "while spectators were fainting in the intense heat, Coolidge remarked, 'If I have to die in office I hope they cut out all this tomfoolery,' according to the story."

In the White House, Keyes declared, "Coolidge was a genuine human being and Mrs. Coolidge was like a mother to the boys in the detail." He described gatherings in the White House basement where Mrs. Coolidge danced with her sons and with the Secret Service men while a phonograph played and the President read.

The music stopped and Mrs. Coolidge remarked, "Daddy, you ought to be ashamed you never learned to dance." "That may be true, Gracie," the President replied. "I spent some time at it once, but I decided it took too much energy that I might use to greater advantage in other directions."

Keyes described Coolidge, dressed in an old rain-coat and a battered hat, trudging daily through the streets of Washington during his afternoon walk unrecognized by the passersby. He imitated the President, reaching into his pocket for handfuls of popcorn, as he walked along, leading his procession of Secret Service men. At their last meeting, Keyes said, Coolidge laughingly showed him a cartoon which pictured the former President seated on a pile of luggage while servants scurried about, over the caption, "Calvin Coolidge absolutely refuses to leave the White House until they find his other rubber."

SELZ, SCHWAB SHOE PLANT GIVEN TO FIVE EMPLOYEES

Liquidation of Concern Is Required to Settle Five Estates.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 20.—The owners of Selz, Schwab & Co. shoe manufacturers, are retiring from business, turning over one of the company's principal plants in Chicago to five veteran employees who have formed a new corporation to carry on the business. This announcement was made yesterday by Edward F. Selz, executive head of the company since the death of J. Harry Selz, president, last summer. The employees to benefit are C. Trafton Cole, William B. Rood, Edward Hahn, Murdoch McGregor and Charles A. Simpson, each of whom has held an important post with the company for many years. With the death of J. Harry Selz last summer, the principal interests in the company were the estates of five deceased persons and settlement of these estates required liquidation of the company. Some of the plants were dismantled and sold in the process of liquidation. At one time plants were operated at Elgin, Genoa, and Quincy, Ill., Milwaukee, Watertown, Waterloo, Madison and Lake Mills, Wis., and South Bend, Ind.

FORD SHIPS MOTOR CAR PARTS BY BARGE LINE

Saving in Month on Freight Charges Estimated at $5000.

Henry Ford, who has dreamed of harnessing the Mississippi, has begun to use it for cheap transportation on a scale which, Federal barge line experts estimated today, saved $5000 in freight costs in the last 30 days, and, if carried out as completed, will save $150,000 a year.

For the first time, utilization is in prospect for a Mississippi River terminal built when Ford's St. Paul assembly plant was erected several years ago, although a revival of traffic on the Upper Mississippi then was only a tenuous hope. The terminal includes a concrete retaining wall and platform of ample size, with a concrete tunnel several hundred feet long from the platform directly into the plant. It is ready for immediate use except for a hoist to lift freight about 20 feet from barges to the platform.

In the last 30 days the Lower Mississippi line has handled 100 carloads for the assembly plants at Memphis, New Orleans, Houston and Dallas—buses from Hamilton, O., autos, motors and springs from Detroit, frames from Detroit and batteries from Indianapolis. Doubling of this tonnage is immediately in view, and, if service continues as satisfactory as in the first month, it is expected to reach 400 carloads a month.

A check on the first 30 carloads showed a saving by rail-and-water rates—generally 20 per cent below all-rail rates—of $1500, or $50 a carload. The saving ranges up to $70 a carload on motors, of which about 100 additional carloads a month are to be routed by river.

First Tow to Upper Mississippi to Sail Next Thursday.
The first Upper Mississippi tow of the season will leave St. Louis next Thursday with a cargo of coffee, burlap, cotton goods, iron pipe, Italian olives and a variety of merchandise, to arrive at the Twin Cities April 4.

The first southbound tow will leave St. Paul April 4 and reach St. Louis April 12, connecting here with the Lower Mississippi line. Twice-weekly sailings will be maintained through the navigation season.

20 WITNESSES QUESTIONED ABOUT PERSHALL KIDNAPING

Madison County Officials Decline to Say Whether Evidence Justifies Warrants.

After examining 20 witnesses in three days, including about 20 called in connection with the kidnaping of Charles W. Pershall, Granite City chain grocer, whose relatives paid $40,000 ransom for his release, the Madison County grand jury adjourned yesterday until March 27.

Officials declined to disclose whether evidence sufficient to justify issuance of warrants had been obtained. Among those who testified were Pershall, his two sons, Samuel and Walter; Ross Johnson, Chief of Police of Granite City; William Champion, banker and chairman of a Citizens' Committee formed to combat crime in Granite City and in Madison County generally, and William Kaiser, former Granite City Alderman.

The grand jury will resume its deliberations March 27.

DRIVER WHO KILLED BLIND NEWSDEALER GETS A YEAR

Sylvester Schorning, 44-year-old clerk, 2214 Big Bend boulevard, Maplewood, was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $100 for manslaughter with an automobile, when he pleaded guilty before Circuit Judge Bruchman at Clayton today.

Policemen had reported that Schorning was intoxicated and was driving a friend's automobile without the owner's consent. Sept. 2 last, when the automobile crossed a curb at Marshall avenue and killed Charles Rollins, 74, a blind newsdealer, who was sitting on his newspaper box. Schorning denied that he was drinking.

Middletown (O.) Policeman Killed. MIDDLETOWN, O., March 20.—Patrolman Daniel Sandlin was shot and killed as he and Patrolman Roy Croust attempted to question two suspected bootleggers after forcing their automobile to the curb early today. Croust said one of the suspects, whom he recognized, jumped out and fired three times, wounding Sandlin fatally. The slayer and his companion escaped aloft.

What should be added to this recipe for Pumpkin Pie?

Mash five 2 cups cooked pumpkin. Add 1½ cups milk. Beat 3 eggs and to them add a pinch of salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Stir this into pumpkin mixture and then fill baked pie-crust with it. Bake until custard has set and crust is done.

Now that you've read it—what's missing? Sugar! And if you include one-half cup with the beaten eggs you can proceed to make a fine pumpkin pie. Through forgetfulness or by heeding some ill-advised person, sugar is often left out of the diet. Desserts are banished. Harsh diets are adhered to unhappily. The dining-table no longer invites you to enjoy food. Such an attitude toward sugar is neither necessary nor in keeping with modern dietetic and medical practice. Use sugar to flavor familiar foods and to make nourishing desserts. Sugar makes eating a joy and when this occurs the system is likely to get all the food values it needs. The Sugar Institute.

TWO INSURANCE MEN ARE DENIED LICENSES

Have Option of Public Hearing on "Twisting" Charge or Court Appeal.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 20.—James P. Sullivan and Ray P. Prewitt, of St. Louis, who have been refused licenses as insurance brokers by the State Insurance Department, conferred here yesterday with Insurance Superintendent Thompson, and were given the alternative of appearing in a public hearing on charges against them of "twisting" or of resorting to court action to attempt to force issuance of the licenses.

Sullivan, formerly general agent in St. Louis for the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Prewitt, who has been a broker for several years, returned to St. Louis last night after telling Thompson they would notify him in a few days which course they would follow. The department refused to renew Prewitt's license as a broker and refused to issue such a license to Sullivan, whose agent's license was canceled recently.

Both have been charged with "twisting" by a committee of insurance men, headed by Stratford L. Morton of St. Louis. "Twisting" of life insurance is a practice, frowned on by insurance men and the department, of persuading the holder of a life insurance policy to drop that policy and buy the type of policy sold by the alleged "twister."

The department has a regulation that "twisting" is sufficient ground for refusal to renew the license of an agent or broker, or to issue such a license. The regulation was adopted in 1915 by former Insurance Superintendent Chorn, but never has been tested in the courts. If Sullivan and Prewitt bring suit to compel the Insurance Department to issue licenses to them, the regulation will be brought before the Missouri courts for the first time. In a ruling turning on another point, the Missouri Supreme Court has held that the Insurance Superintendent has broad discretion in the issuance or refusal of licenses.

Supt. Thompson said that if Sullivan and Prewitt preferred to appear in a public hearing on the charges such a hearing would be held on April 7.

J. M. GUFFEY, DEMOCRATIC LEADER FOR 50 YEARS, DIES
Pennsylvanian Was Pioneer in Oil and Gas Development; Known as Colonel.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 20.—James M. Guffey, 91 years old, a pioneer in the oil and gas development of Pennsylvania and for half a century a leader in the Democratic party in that State, died today.

Popularly known as "Colonel J. M.," after he first came to Pittsburgh in 1882, Guffey took an active part in Grover Cleveland's campaigns for the presidency and was the Pennsylvania member of the Democratic Committee for 16 years. He broke with William Jennings Bryan when the latter was the party nominee for the presidency in 1908, and Guffey delegates to the Denver convention were unseated.

WOMAN REPORTS SHE LOST
JEWELS VALUED AT $25,000

A black case containing jewelry valued at $25,000 was reported lost by Mrs. Frank Pickrell, El Paso, Tex., either during a 42-minute wait for an eastbound train in the Union Station last Saturday or prior to leaving the Missouri Pacific "Texan" on which she left her home.

Search of the station and train has been futile, special agents of the Terminal and Missouri Pacific Railroad and Pullman Co. said today. Mrs. Pickrell, who is in New York, notified the train secretary on "The American" shortly after leaving St. Louis that she had mislaid the case. She said it contained a diamond brooch, a diamond and emerald bracelet, a large diamond drop, and a diamond cord wrist watch. The case, of black leather, bore the initials "F. T. P." A reward of $1500 for the return of the jewelry has been posted by a New York insurance agency through its local representative, R. E. Finnegan, 610 Planters Building.

BROOKS SUBMITS TRIPLED BUDGET FOR TRAFFIC CONTROL

Street Director Seeks $154,500, as Compared to $50,000 in the Past Year.

An annual budget was submitted today by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks for $154,500 for traffic control, as compared to a budget of $50,000 for the year ending April 5.

Major items are $32,000 for coordinated electric signal systems, and $17,365 for isolated signals, $18,000 for "boulevard" and "uni-for street" signals, $9500 for safety zones and $10,950 for metal studs
for pedestrians' crossings.

Traffic Engineer Hoffman pointed out that Chicago spent $129,000 and Pittsburgh spent $124,000 for similar purposes in 1928, and that other cities generally are moving toward closer traffic control. He said co-ordinated signals were urgently required on Grand between Easton and Laclede; Twelfth, between Market and Washington;
both Compton and Newstead, between Laclede and Easton; Vandeventer, between Forest Park avenue and Easton. Individual signals were needed, he said, at Delmar and Skinker and the three-way intersections at Oakland and Kings-highway, Southwest and Kings-highway, Grand and Gravois and Jefferson and Gravois.

OIL DUTY BEATEN WHEN FIVE SUGAR SENATORS DESER

Recriminations Fly in Corridors After $1 a Barrel Tariff Is Voted Down, 3 to 29.

PINE AND THOMAS
DOUBLE-CROSSE

Oklahomans Fail to G-Support of Smoot, Vandenburg, Howell, Fletcher and Trammel.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—O-
was "taken for a ride" last night when the Senate voted down two proposals to impose a tariff on crude petroleum and refined products. "Oil Senators" who had voted loyally for a higher sugar duty in accordance with the terms of the trade engineered three weeks ago on oil, lumber and sugar, saw five "Sugar Senators" vote against the proposed duty on oil. The ensuing recriminations in the chambers and corridors amounted to what, in less exalted quarters,
would be recognized as an accusation of double-crossing.

Conspicuous among those who voted against the proposed oil duty was Senator Smoot (Rep., Utah), who succeeded in getting an increase in the sugar duty two weeks ago when Senators interested in oil and lumber were induced to change their votes on sugar in return for express or implied pledges that "Sugar Senators" would vote for the proposed oil and lumber tariffs. Other "Sugar Senators" who "crossed"
the oil bloc by voting against the product last night were Vandeberg of Michigan and Howell of Nebraska, Republicans, and Fletcher and Trammel of Florida, Democrats.

Grundy Sticks to Bargain.
Since the vote on the proposal to impose a duty of $1 a barrel on crude oil and 50 per cent advalorem on refined products, was 28 to 22, the five defections exactly sufficed to defeat it. That proposal was offered by Senator Thomas (Dem., Oklahoma). A subsequent proposal for a rate of 50 cents a barrel and 25 per cent
ad valorem, offered by Senator Pine (Rep., Oklahoma), was defeated by 38 to 28. Both Pine and Thomas had voted to increase the sugar rate after previously voting against it.

Senator "Old Joe" Grundy
(Rep., Pennsylvania), generally credited with arranging the deal on sugar, oil and lumber, stood by his bargain, and was paired in favor of the oil increase, but he failed to hold his "gang" together.
Metcalf (Rep.), of Rhode Island,
one of the 10 who switched over on sugar, voted against oil last night, and Patterson (Rep., Missouri), who had voted with the combination on every previous ballot, was absent and unpaired.

It had been estimated during the course of the discussion, that the imposition of the oil duty would have added more than $700,000,000 a year to the living costs of the American people especially through the price of gasoline.

Attack on Lobby Committee.
The one of the most acrimonious debates which has occurred in the course of the long tariff battle. Various Senators attempted to defend themselves against the charge of trading votes, and Thomas of Oklahoma, and Robinson (Rep., Indiana), bitterly assailed the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee for what they termed its "tyrannical" conduct. Thomas criticized the committee's methods in investigating the oil lobby, headed by Wm.
Franklin, and it was evident the Robinson's feeling grew out of the committee's scrutiny of the financial and lobbying activities of Clausius H. Huston, Republican National Chairman.

These criticisms drew a fiercely from Senator Norris (Rep., Nebraska), who likened them to similar attacks made on Senate committees that investigated Harry Sinclair, E. L. Doheny, Robert W. Stewart and the events that culminated in the oil scandal. The tenaciousness of the debate was somewhat relieved when Senator William (Rep., Colorado), after rising to deny that he had participated in any trade, was led into the admission that he would not vote to place duties on products from other states unless Senators from those states would vote for duties on Colorado products.

Walsh Replies to Thomas.
Thomas, who opened the discussion, charged that the Lobby Committee had violated "the right of citizens" by seizing papers and correspondence from the headquarters of the oil lobby in the Mayflower Hotel, and in subjecting it to a search.

INCOME TAX COLLECTIONS SHOW GAIN OF $40,000,000

Treasury Report of March 18 Puts Total at $314,300,558—Previously Had Run Behind Last Year's.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 20.—Income tax receipts from the March 15 collection, as shown by the Treasury, today totaled $314,300,558, exceeding by more than $40,000,000 collections for the same date last year.

This amount was the total for the month of March as shown in the Treasury statement for March 18, made public today. It represented the total turned in at the close of business of the preceding day.

Although yesterday's statement showed receipts running about $10,000,000 behind those for the same period in the preceding year, the receipt of $214,534,548 added to the Treasury balance on March 18 more than offset this shortage. The collection on the same day in 1929 amounted to only about $161,000,000. Receipts so far accounted for totaled very near three-fifths of the budget expectations for the first quarterly income tax collection. Treasury officials, however, still held that this was no definite indication that the expectation would be met.

The high returns shown for March 18 were ascribed by Treasury officials largely to the overtime work put in by collectors on Saturday night and Sunday, in an effort to clean up as much as possible of the work immediately.

The next reports, in the opinion of officials, may show a sharp falling off. It was expected today that five or six days would be required to make certain what the total would be. Optimism prevailed at the Treasury, however, it being thought that the budget estimate of a $550,000,000 collection would be met.

GANDHI CROSSES RIVER IN BOAT; OTHERS WADE

Indian Nationalists Reach the Flooded Mahi in Dead of Night.

By the Associated Press.
JAMBUSAR, Bombay, India, March 20.—The River Mahi was in flooded condition when in the dead of night Mahatma Gandhi crossed to a point near here from Raas. He used a boat, from which he was lifted and carried ashore when it reached this bank.

Other members of his party of 78 devotees, who are beginning a campaign of civil disobedience of the British Government, waded three miles through water and mud before halting on the river bank for the night.

Today Jawaharlal Nehru, president of the All-India National Congress, met Gandhi and they walked together at the head of the column to Karel, where the party will halt all day.

Before crossing the river the Mahatma addressed villagers at Kanhar. "This will be the last religious pilgrimage of my life and I have undertaken it on foot according to tradition."

He added that it was fashionable to make pilgrimages by airplane, but that by making them afoot he and his followers would gain much more. He exhorted the villagers to be ready to manufacture salt as soon as he reached Jalapur.

CUBAN WORKERS ON 24-HOUR STRIKE AGAINST IDLENESS

200,000 Are Out; Public Utility Plants and Railroads Not Affected.
By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, March 20.—A 24-hour general strike in protest against unemployment was begun in Cuba at midnight. The island is peaceful and no arrests have been made. Police charged the strike was in compliance with orders from the Third International at Moscow.

It is estimated that 200,000 workmen walked out. The Cigarmakers' Union was the first to call a halt to labor until Friday morning. Street car and omnibus operators left their vehicles at 1 a. m. Waiters and employees of restaurants and cabarets quit at midnight. Public utility plants and railroads were not affected, the view being taken that these were necessary to public welfare.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, March 20.—One hundred and thirty Chinese men, women and children were burned to death at Kirin yesterday when fire destroyed a motion picture theater. Twenty others were injured.

The theater was of wood and was only two months old, having opened in January to show American films. Defective wiring was believed the cause of the disaster.

BALFOUR MEMORIAL SERVICES IN WESTMINSTER SATURDAY

At Same Hour Funeral Will Be Held at Home of Earl in Scotland.
By the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 20.—Memorial services for the Earl of Balfour will be held at Westminster Abbey Saturday, the day set for the funeral of the statesman at his home in Wiltshire, Scotland.

The Duke of York will represent King George, and leaders of State will join with other prominent persons in paying homage to his memory. At the same time a memorial service will be held in St. Giles Cathedral in Edinburgh.

Prime Minister MacDonald said in the House of Commons today that Balfour, "at the age when he might have enjoyed the serenity of peaceful afternoon and evening," returned to activity for the nation's sake. In these later years, as an elderly statesman living above the battle, he had more influence than ever before on our public life.

His influence was borne on many of its gateways. His interest was recorded in the happy relations which grew up between the United States and ourselves.

Newspapers give prominent position to tributes from Chief Justice Hughes and Vice President Curtis of the United States.

REPORT AGAINST LOWER RATE TO GULF ATTACKED

Mississippi Valley Association Files Brief of Exceptions With Interstate Commerce Commission.

FIRST VENTURE IN SUCH A CASE

Proposed Schedules Will Develop High-Class Steamship Lines of Benefit to Middle West.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Low rail rates to Gulf ports will develop high-class steamship lines and other essentials for an efficient outlet for Middle Western products, the Mississippi Valley Association declared yesterday in a brief of exceptions to an adverse report of examiners for the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The brief attacked the examiners' ruling that the rates asked for would not be compensatory as required by law. It contended that the rates recommended by the examiners were "higher than those in force on the Southern lines for 20 years" and would compel "export traffic from central territory to move through North Atlantic ports and render traffic in interior territory unable to compete in Central and South America as well as in all foreign countries."

Charles A. Newton of St. Louis, former Congressman, was general counsel of the association, and Theodore Brent of New Orleans, president of the Redwood line, as transportation counsel, prepared the brief. The intervention was the association's first venture into a rail rate case.

Lack of Balanced Cargo. Citing that rail service to gulf ports and steamer service from them were inferior compared with North Atlantic ports, Newton attributed the inferiority to slender traffic and, for the steamships, lack of balanced cargo.

"There is available in the lower Mississippi Valley," Newton pointed out, "an abundance of eight suitable for 'bottom' cargoes, such as lumber, hardwood, steel, rosin, asphalt, coarse grain, sugar, rice, petroleum cake, coke from the refineries, lubricating oils and many other commodities. These commodities will not however, sustain high-grade, fast ocean lines. They will only sustain a slow, low-grade ocean service which does not require speed or regular schedules."

"In order to sustain high-grade, regular, dependable ocean service out of Gulf ports such as the ports of New York and Baltimore enjoy, the Gulf ports must have 'top' cargo, and if the rates applied for by the Southern carriers are approved by the commission the cargo for the Southern ports will become immediately available."

"Will Stimulate Industry." "This service will stimulate manufacturing industry in the midst of agriculture in the Mississippi Valley. It will conserve the public interest and promote the national welfare."

"We contend that the proposed report of the examiners, if applied, will result in a rate structure which will concentrate all of the high-grade, fast, dependable ocean lines east of the Rocky Mountains and compel them to sail out of North Atlantic ports, and will render impossible the development of such high-grade ocean service out of the South Atlantic or Gulf ports. We respectfully urge that such a concentration of our merchant marine is not in harmony with a sound national policy and is in conflict with the clear intent of Congress."

5-AND-10 DRY LAW AUTHOR ATTACKS THE PRESS AS WET

Senator Jones of Washington Deplores "Lack of Sympathy" With Prohibition.

ENCOURAGES CRIME, HE SAYS

Issues "Voice of the Multitude," a Compendium of Anonymous Opinions on Act.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Declaring that the public press lacked sympathy with the prohibition laws, Senator Wesley Jones (Rep.), Washington, author of the Jones enforcement act, today issued a compendium of opinions of citizens in the United States and Canada which he called "The voice of the multitude."

He asserted that "the last and greatest factor" in enforcement difficulties was the "attitude of many newspapers which, so it seems, publish everything which may be unfavorably construed."

Charging that this "apparent lack of sympathy" was causing the "encouragement of crime," Jones said "the general public is no longer dependent upon newspapers for correct information, as there are now many other sources available," and "the newspapers are to a great extent considered to be expressive of the idea of ordinary people, though whether or not the newspapers are the ideas of the American people at this period of history of our country is problematical."

The statement quoted many expressions from people which Jones said he had received in response to a radio address. He did not make public the names.

HAIITIAN COMMISSION REACHES MIAMI, PROCEEDS TO CAPITAL

By the Associated Press.
MIAMI, Fla., March 20.—Members of President Hoover's Haitian Commission, arriving here at 8:30 a. m., entrained for Washington after a sight seeing tour of the city.

Although members of the Commission refused to disclose the nature of the report they will make to Mr. Hoover within three weeks, Henry E. Fletcher, a member, speaking for the group said: "We had a most interesting experience and spent all of our time there investigating conditions. We were pleased to be able to make recommendations for the solution of the serious political situation in that country."

AMERICAN WATCHMAKERS TO START FACTORY IN RUSSIA

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, March 20.—Twenty-four American watchmakers, formerly employed by the Duber Hampden Works at Canton, O., arrived here yesterday. They will establish the first watch factory in Russia and will try to teach their trade to Russians.

The men came here under a one-year renewable contract with the Government. Watchmaking machinery filling 25 freight cars is on the way to this city. The men will work on a guild system, something like that which prevailed in the middle ages.

The Government also announced it had acquired control of an American factory manufacturing dollar watches. It was declared the Soviet hoped to produce 1,000,000 cheap watches and 200,000 full jewel timepieces annually.

JEWS SENTENCED IN TURKEY $50,000 FOR VARE AND WILSON

ISTANBUL, March 19.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—Nine Jews who were arrested in 1927 for participating in a demonstration at the funeral of Elias Neco, Jewish girl who was murdered by Osman Bey, a Turkish official, have been sentenced to a year in prison. The case will be taken to the highest Turkish court on appeal.

The Jews were acquitted at their first trial, Sept. 27, 1927, of sedition and conspiracy at the funeral. The affair gave rise to anti-Semitic attacks in the Turkish press. At the second trial, which opened Jan. 12, the Jews were accused of having insulted the Turkish Republic.

MACDONALD SEES GRANDI FOLLOWING TALK WITH BRIAND

British Premier Trying to Bring the Franco-Italian Naval Parity Problem Out of Stalemate.

FRENCHMAN TAKES CHEERFUL ATTITUDE

Foreign Minister Says That "Always, When Things Seem at Worst, One Finds a Way Out."

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 20.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald met Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy at the House of Commons this afternoon. Grandi is the head of the Italian delegation to the five-Power naval conference in London. It was understood the meeting developed in consequence of the Prime Minister's conversation with Foreign Minister Briand of France late yesterday.

Macdonald, beset by the vital conference problems, was relieved of much domestic political worry today, when David Lloyd George announced at a House of Commons committee meeting, that the Liberal party would take no part in moving or supporting amendments in the committee stage of the coal bill because any action of possible hostile character by the Liberals would affect critically the state of the naval conference. He said he understood the fate of the conference was hanging in the balance, that it was "a question of life or death." Liberal amendments were withdrawn.

Briand to Return at Week-End. Briand, head of the French delegation to the conference, left London this forenoon for Paris. It was understood his purpose was to consult Premier Tardieu about the conference. He said he expected to return to England with Tardieu at the week-end.

It is understood in conference circles that both the British and Americans have prepared suggestions for possible solution of the Franco-Italian dispute over Italy's demand for naval parity with France. These may be contingent upon getting the two contestants

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my platform will make no difference in its cardinal principles: that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be actuated by merely private interests, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

No Sherlock Needed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

It does not require the deductive powers of Sherlock Holmes to fathom the continued absence of green buses from the streets of St. Louis. As far away as he is, I can hear Mr. Newman chuckling up his sleeve at the plight of local bus riders, while their dimes trickle through the coin boxes in the yellow cars.

Holding companies are tearing down the structure of American business. Competition is being wiped out. It's the public that should be called the holding company, for it is not the public that holds the bag, not the bag of gold or silver, but the bag of promises and hopes.

The Public Service Co. and the People's Motorbus Co. are owned by the same holding company, so why should this company make any effort to resume the operation of the green buses, when the cars can haul all the extra passengers with practically no increase in the overhead of the Public Service Co.?

Prof. Lippincott's Article.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

COULD you induce Isaac Lippincott to submit another article elaborating his statement that "waste is a great feature of our present system of business" as published last week under the title "An Economist's View of Auto Junking"? The article is quite different than those written by the popular magazine economists. It sticks to the doctrine of conservation of natural resources, which appears to have set below the national horizon.

It would be a worthwhile article which would treat of the condition that under an unfettered industrial system destruction must match consumption, and under an unregulated financial system industry is compelled to an ever-accelerated pace.

In the proposed article the cost of destruction of the 12-year-old automobile fleet, battlehips, etc., pictured in your rotogravure section, comparatively new buildings torn down that stand in the way of progress, losses to individual merchants from money accumulations being used to shove them out of business, constant inflation of currency at the expense of stability, and hundreds of other makeshifts to make the American system work properly, will cause even the most apathetic citizen to ask—where are we going?

Evasion of Personal Property Taxes.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

HAVE just read the notice requesting every voter to vote on the special school tax election, to be held Tuesday March 25.

It is fair to continue the 55-cent tax when a large percentage of the voters evade paying a personal tax, or do not make a return? Why not see that each individual pays his personal taxes? In order rigidly to enforce this law, why not do as they do in Washington, D. C.—make each automobile owner produce tax receipts which must be stamped paid before a license is issued?

The Bus Strike.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

THE writer wonders whether the people of St. Louis realize that another attempt is being made to force something down their throats with the assistance of so called "organized labor."

I am referring to the strike of bus employees. Although the Public Service Co. and the People's Motorbus Co. are under the control of the same financial interests, the street car company, which is the much larger, is losing great sums of money daily because the people prefer to ride the buses, and why not? Naturally if they can get the buses off the streets and force all the people to ride street cars again it will be to their great advantage.

In New School Site Unsafe for Children?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

I AM afraid the agent of the School Board who selected the location did not realize the unsafe surroundings of the new school on Enright avenue near Vandeventer.

There the car line circles around, also the blind alley in the rear makes it necessary for children to cross tracks either way they go to and from school. Then the Fire Department is just across the street, and Enright, which is a boulevard, is very dangerous for children going to and from school.

As I was one of the first to petition for this school, and as a taxpayer and citizen of St. Louis, I feel that I should call your attention to this for the sake of the children.

MR. TAFT AND MR. LINCOLN.

Mr. Taft's posthumous letter to Prof. Irving Fisher revising his former opinion and accepting national prohibition as a mandate from the people emphasizes the totally opposite conception of citizenship held by Abraham Lincoln. In the Yale address to which Mr. Taft referred in his letter he said:

When a two-thirds majority of Congress and three-fourths of the state legislatures adopt a Constitutional amendment, and a majority of each House of Congress passes a law to enforce it, the rules of the game of popular government are that all living under that Government must obey. It is not patriotic, it is not sportsmanlike, to evade or disobey.

I am appealing to such a man to change his attitude toward the enforcement of that law because much as he may disagree with prohibition—I mean as a principle—he can't afford to have his opposition to prohibition impair the influence of the Constitution and laws of the country or wreck the future of the society whose basis must rest upon them.

The crisis in which Mr. Lincoln refused to acquiesce against his judgment in any such mandate, whether from the people or the courts, was the most thrilling chapter in American history. It precipitated the Lincoln-Douglas debates, to which the people came in such multitudes as no such encounter had ever attracted. Mr. Lincoln was aroused by the Dred Scott decision, which held that a slave was property and subject to the laws of property in the territories, and the fugitive slave laws, which obligated the people of the North to help the South catch its runaway slaves. Despite every effort upon the part of his friends, and against the judgment of powerful sympathizers with abolition such as Horace Greeley, then editor of the New York Tribune, Lincoln insisted in debate after debate that he owed no such duty as a citizen as that enunciated by Mr. Taft in the Yale address. He said upon one occasion:

Judge Douglas contends that whatever community wants slaves has a right to have them; and so they have if slavery is right, but if slavery is wrong they can have no right to do wrong. He says that slaves like other property may be carried into new territory, and that is true if slavery is right, but if slavery is wrong there can be no such right. There can be no comparison between right and wrong. That is the issue that shall continue in this country when these poor tongues of ours shall be silent. It is the eternal struggle between the two principles of right and wrong in the world.

Lincoln said in one of the debates that another Dred Scott decision would make the slaves property in every free state. He foresaw that the time would come when the slave owners, who controlled both Congress and the United States Supreme Court, would force acquiescence in slavery upon the whole country. It was this realization that impelled him to reject all counsel other than that of his own conscience and insist that it was his duty to save the country from such a fate. He rejected political expediency, which Mr. Taft could accept, holding that to acquiesce in what it knew to be wrong could never save but would destroy the Republic.

The analogy between what he charged the slave owners were doing and what the prohibitionists have done—that is, forcing upon all the people by sheer power of law what they themselves believe is very powerful.

After his debates with Douglas the country was in no doubt of where Mr. Lincoln stood. He had defied Congress and the courts. He had challenged either to make him acquiesce in what he knew to be wrong. He lost the senatorial election, but he won the debates. In the end all those who, like Mr. Greeley, had thought he went too far, acknowledged him right. Such was our most illustrious American, beautifully characterized by John Drinkwater as "A man for the ages."

Truly, there can be no comparison between right and wrong, and the struggle between them is eternal. No sound conception of citizenship, or of patriotism, or of good sportsmanship, can admit the right of one great segment of the people to put upon another great segment of the people any law which has not their consent. It was wrong for the slave owners to do it, and it is wrong for the prohibitionists to do it.

CHIEF McDONNELL.

Chief of Police McDonnell of Webster Groves is better versed in boy psychology than most police officials. His latest demonstration of this happy faculty is his attitude toward the mischievous schoolboy practice of stripping the town of signs. Instead of threatening the boys with jail, Chief McDonnell simply notified them to bring the signs to headquarters. In a short while a parade of boys had returned 200 church, street and business signs which they had lifted to gratify the hobby of using them to decorate their rooms; they had also promised the Chief to abandon the habit. Our guess is they will do so. In the meantime, Webster Groves is to be congratulated on the possession of a Chief who resists a temptation to make a tempest of a teapot.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES' FIRST DECISION.

The first decision of Chief Justice Hughes is of particular interest because it upholds the constitutional restriction of the power of courts to pass on legislation, a check on the judiciary long sought by the school of political thought which so strenuously opposed him in the Senate. The opinion, written for the majority of the court, declares constitutional a provision of the Ohio State Constitution which prevents the State Supreme Court from invalidating State laws upheld by lower State courts if more than one State Supreme Court Justice holds the law constitutional. Thus, in Ohio, under the Hughes ruling, if the lower State courts have upheld statutes, the State Supreme Court can not overrule them by 4 to 3 or even 5 to 2 decisions. The Chief Justice took the view that a state has the right to limit its supreme tribunal if it wants to.

The Ohio provision is, in effect, a State application of one of the most alarming proposals of the elder La Follette in his independent campaign for the presidency in 1924, namely, to require more than a majority vote of the Federal Supreme Court to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional. The decision makes given somewhat of a start to those who, in their opposition to Hughes, utilized the argument that courts are increasingly assuming wider scope in ruling on the action of legislative bodies.

When the Chief Justice, in his opinion in this case, declared it not within the province of the United States Supreme Court to "interpose" to protect the citizens of the State from the consequences of its policy, if the State has not discarded the requirements of the Federal Constitution," he stated succinctly the basic concept of the Federal form of government, a concept which needs far wider currency in this day of vanishing rights of states.

THE LAST OF THE VICTORIANS.

Arthur James Balfour was 74 years old when, in 1922, King George conferred upon him the Order of the Garter in recognition of his services at the Washington conference. Title had frequently been proffered him and, after the fashion of Gladstone, pleasantly but firmly declined. Like Gladstone, too, he needed no "riband to wear in his coat."

For half a century he was an eminent figure in English life. He was a scholar among scholars, diplomat among diplomats, politician among politicians, statesman among statesmen. The young man whom Ireland reviled as "Bloody Balfour," subsequently modifying that judgment, wrote learnedly on the philosophy of doubt, was a university lecturer, probed scientifically into the theory of matter. By birth and tradition a Conservative, he was good enough rebel to identify himself with the short-lived Fourth party whose platform was independence of party creed and a commitment to vote one's conviction regardless of party policy. Conservative Governments continuously employed him in high Cabinet offices, finally choosing him for Prime Minister.

With the World War his orbit expanded to include America. He was head of the British War Commission that came to the United States in 1917, and four years later he repeated the visit as a member of the British delegation to the arms reduction convention. Shortly after the Washington Conference the new Earl of Balfour suggested a plan of war debt settlements that roused a tempest. The "Balfour note," as it was called, proposed to remit the indebtedness of the allied countries to England, approximately $9,700,000,000, on condition that the debt countries pay Great Britain's score of $4,600,000,000 to the United States. As a gesture of generosity it failed everywhere, and nowhere quite so furiously as in France.

Balfour continued serenely on his way, still playing his occasional game of tennis, finding time to conduct psychical experiments with Prof. Gilbert Murray, still adventuring on ambassadorial missions to the outposts of the Empire, facing the wrath of an Arabian mob in Damascus, proclaiming Palestine the homeland of the Jews, accusing Turkey of murderous designs, browsing contentedly in the familiar fields of the classics, a savant inescapably involved in the strife of mighty affairs.

So passes the last of the Victorian Ministers.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN SPEAKING.

Suppose a country, X, with three manufacturers, as cloth, silk, iron, supplying three other countries, A, B, C, but is desirous of increasing the vent, and raising the price of cloth in favor of her own clothiers.

In order to do this, she forbids the importation of foreign cloth from A.

A, in return, forbids silk from X.

Then the silk workers complain of a decay of trade.

And X, to content them, forbids silk from B.

B, in return, forbids iron from X.

Then the ironworkers complain of decay.

And X forbids the importation of iron from C.

C, in return, forbids cloth from X.

What is got by all these prohibitions?

Answer: All four find their common stock of the enjoyments and conveniences of life diminished.

A SUBWAY CASUALTY.

Young orchestra leaders and other musicians with plans for storming Broadway would do well to consider the ghastly adventure of Sidney Dressler before beginning their travels. Carrying his bass drum, his snare drum, his tom-tom, his kazoo, his triangle and his cow bell, this young virtuoso started to go downtown on the subway. He never got past the turnstile. Charging gallantly toward the narrow opening, he found himself caught like a pig under a gate. The crowds behind tried to help by surging hard against him, but the walking orchestra was stuck fast, his traps clanging sour notes as he struggled. Several policemen and some subway employees, hastily summoned, finally pulled and pried sufficiently to separate Sidney from the utility's property. But his evening was utterly spoiled.

An experienced artist like Paul Whiteman, we are sure, would never try to go through a subway turnstile lugging a bass drum. Even the sylphlike Rudy Vallee couldn't be debonair through such an ordeal. An orchestra leader may yearn to stop traffic, but it can be done in a dignified manner. Sidney's experience should teach budding geniuses to have taxi fare available, or to charter a moving van in getting about to dance palaces. If they have only subway fare on hand they had better specialize in the piccolo or the ocarina.

NO FARE INCREASE IN DETROIT.

Mayor Bowles of Detroit has vetoed the proposal of the Detroit Street Railways to increase its fares to 8 cents. He argues that, under present business conditions, it would be unjust to put an additional expense upon the car riders. The News of that city approves the Mayor's decision, particularly since, as it observes, the street railway company "has failed to present a report which would justify the raise."

As it happens, the Detroit Street Railways is owned by the city. But if it were a privately owned utility the Mayor, or the administration, would have the power to suspend the increased rate. Because in Detroit the utilities operate under the permit system and are subject to local regulation. Unlike companies with franchises, the Detroit public utilities cannot appeal to a State commission. The experience exemplifies the practical advantage of home rule.

Whether the Detroit Street Railways needs, or is entitled to, a higher fare is a question on which we have no opinion. But the force of the Mayor's reasoning is patent. This is not a time to impose additional expenses on the public. Detroit is in the happy position of being able to prevent such imposition. St. Louis is not. Here street car fares have been boosted to 10 cents in the face of adverse business conditions, of which the Missouri Public Service Commission took no account, while the city was helpless.

Now the astrologers can explain that the strange fallows of some horoscopes to come true was because their subjects were born under a planet no one knew anything about.

"AND DEPARTING LEAVE BEHIND US FOOTPRINTS ON THE SANDS OF TIME."

Courage in Public Life

Norris' vote against increase in sugar tariff, with close race for re-election near, is called bravest act in Senate in years; many legislators live in terror of losing support by facing issues; timidity leads to elaborate evasions; runaways shown up by every roll call; lack of political intelligence one cause of cowardice.

The Gentleman at the Keyhole in Collier's Weekly.

THE bravest act in the Senate for many years was the vote of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska against an increase of the duty on sugar. Mr. Norris comes up for re-election next fall. Nebraska is a beet sugar State, one of the two or three real beet sugar raising states in the country.

By voting against a higher rate on sugar, Mr. Norris alienated some support among the beet farmers of Western Nebraska. And he needs all the support he can get in order to be renominated and re-elected.

He bolted Herbert Hoover for President in 1928 and campaigned for Gov. Smith. So the Hoover Republicans of Nebraska are against him. Not only that, but bolting is dangerous business at best. Moreover, he probably never in his life desired so much to be renominated as he does now, for with the coalition in the saddle his opportunity to accomplish results is greater than it has been in 30 years.

Still, being an honest man and believing that the consuming masses should not be taxed to keep an artificial industry alive, he voted against more protection for beet sugar. The country could almost afford to pay the added tax on sugar to keep George Norris in the Senate.

As a contrast, there is Robert B. Howell, Mr. Norris' colleague from Nebraska. Mr. Howell goes about the Senate floor tight-lipped and implacable, a hater of the fleshpots of Mr. Grundy. He didn't bolt Mr. Hoover. He does not come up for re-election until 1932 and so is under no immediate pressure. He probably doesn't believe in a higher duty on sugar any more than Mr. Norris does. But he voted for it all the same.

While we are on this subject of courage, it is worth remarking that deficiency in it is what does more to discredit the Senate than any other defect in its membership. Even the brains of a timid man are only about 50 per cent effective.

Most Senators live in terror of organized minorities—the beet growers, or the rural preachers, or the straw hat makers, or the Anti-Saloon League. They tremble before the mail they receive every morning. They have modified the old saying, "He who fights and runs away will live to fight another day," so that it reads, "He who lives to run away will live to run away another day." And generally they do.

That Curio, the Trackless Trolley

From the Cleveland Press.

FROM St. Louis comes the report that the street car company there is going to install "trackless" trolleys on Vandeventer avenue. The item in the St. Louis paper didn't give many details, but it did interest us very much.

It merely said that the trolleys would run on rubber tires like a bus and have two trolley poles and two trolley wires, and that they operated cheaply and with great freedom of movement, being able either to hog the whole road or run along at the side.

Of course, we have no idea how they're going to work. They may be as no-account as the snow-loading machines the railway company and the city bought. Anyway, the very idea of a "trackless trolley" attracts us, and we'd pay at least 10 cents (eight admissions for dog bits) any time, just to see one.

WASHINGTON, March 19.

EDGARDE SIMONE, the Italian sculptor who made the Taft death mask, has had the idea suggested to him while dining with a newspaper man the night of the ex-President's death.

Simone has been in Washington only two months, in which time he has made busts of Justices Holmes and Stone, Gen. Pershing, George Wickensham, and several others prominent in official life. The sculptor appealed to Justice Stone for assistance in getting permission to make the mask. After the family had granted his request, he went to the Taft home. In the presence of Taft's son, Robert, he made the mask within an hour. Simone describes it as one of the most remarkable of the many he has made.

A new during the quiet of the Sunday afternoon after the ex-President's death: Not a sign of activity within the big brick mansion where lies the body of the great American. . . . In front a knot of photographers, chattering with a motor-cycle officer and a beat patrolman. . . . The beat patrolman playfully leans over and pushes the siren on the motor cycle and the quiet of the street is shattered by the din of a mournful "whoop-ee-ee-ee." A small beat playing with a yo-yo top. Join the group.

A glistering limousine rolls up, unoccupied save for the chauffeur, who brings it to a grinding stop. . . . He carries a huge box, apparently flowers, up to the door, and quickly closes it. The box is handed in. . . . On the top step of the Taft home the chauffeur stops. . . . One foot in the air, his hand on his head, he calls out in falsetto to the photographers: "Snap me, boys."

MRS. WOODROW WILSON arrives. . . . Within 15 feet of the photographers she throws up a hand in front of her face, noting that a camera is leveled at her. . . . Soon she brings the hand down with relief. . . . A second man of the same service steps from behind the first one and gets a perfect picture. Evidently her chauffeur, who always carries an umbrella conveniently placed in the front seat near him when his employer is visiting where photographers might be lurking, has had a lapse of memory.

Charles MacVeagh, former Ambassador to Japan, and Mrs. MacVeagh, arrive in their horse-drawn carriage. . . . A Negro footman jumps lightly to the ground and helps them alight. . . . They disappear within the Taft home and return after a brief stay to face a barrage of cameras. . . . Justice McReynolds chides photographers for snapping him. . . . He suggests that farming would be a more appropriate way for them to make a living. . . . Whereupon they fall to kidding each other as to how they would look behind a plow. . . .

RUDOLPH REUTER, PIANIST, SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA SOLOIST

He Will Play Beethoven's C Minor Concerto No. 3 and "A Pagan Poem"

Rudolph Reuter, American pianist, will be the last soloist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's golden jubilee season at its concert tomorrow afternoon and Saturday night under direction of Guest Conductor Eugene Goossens. He is to play Beethoven's C minor Concerto No. 3, and will have the piano role in Charles Martin Loeffler's "A Pagan Poem," which is written for orchestra with piano, English horn and three trumpets.

The detailed program follows: Symphony in D major K. 594, . . . Mozart; Adagio, . . . Liszt; . . .

Reuter, who had a previous reputation as a boy soprano and a child recitalist on organ and piano, was engaged, at the age of 13, by the Japanese Government to modernize methods of instruction at the State Conservatory at Tokyo. On his return from the Orient, he won a name for himself by a series of concerts in America and reinforced that reputation with a succession of recital and concert appearances throughout Europe.

Mr. Bent's purpose has been the assembling of evidence of the penetration of the machine into the affairs and the lives of men and its influence on social evolution. In chapters devoted to Food, Shelter, Clothing, War, Farming, Transportation and Communication he presents a rapid survey of the vast changes brought about by machinery and modern man's dependence on mechanical contrivances.

In treating of Labor and of Education, brief consideration is given to the menace to individualism in mass production and standardization. In his chapters on Politics the author predicts developments in governmental methods that promise a social control of mechanized processes that will make more progress and equitable use of their benefits.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, MARCH 20.

THE automatic restaurant experiment was launched about 20 years ago with a salvo of chairs. It became the immediate topic, ha, ha, of vaudeville and musical revue fests. Today it is one of the most profitable forms of public catering and stage folk are the most regular customers.

In the greater city there are some 20 Automats doing a capacity business day and night. In the beginning a visit to the automat was looked upon as a task, indulged in chiefly by out of town gawkers. It provided a tale to saucer eyes when they got back home.

The first, the biggest and still the best patronized Automat is located by the Globe Theater on Broadway. Here, as in all others, patrons supplied with nickels at the change desk near the entrance roam about the display of dishes in the glass slot-making sections.

There are marble topped tables dotted with paper napkins to which the food is carried and there is, of course, no tipping. The profits are due largely to the fact that the customer sees so many tempting dishes at a trifling cost he provides himself with more than he can eat.

Sandwiches, desserts and soft drinks average 10 cents each and meat orders are around 20 cents. The average patron spends 30 cents at lunch and 50 cents for dinner.

The most popular order of all is a ham sandwich and a cup of coffee. There is a heavy midnight trade, especially in the Broadway zone, where theatrical people and musicians drop in for a late snack.

There is also a big "carry out" trade among those who bring paper sacks and fill them for boarding-house feasts.

The automat does not thrive solely on a thin purse clientele. It draws carriage customers. After the theater and in the early morning men and women in evening clothes are plentiful. Too, there is always a sprinkling of "clowns" to add a touch of hilarity to mechanized eating.

CHILD WELFARE PROBLEMS DISCUSSED AT FORUM

Prof. Frank Bruno Advocates Placing of Delinquents in Supervised Private Homes.

A summary of child welfare problems in St. Louis was presented yesterday at a forum sponsored by the Child Welfare Committee of the League of Women Voters at the Town Club. Speakers, representing every phase of child welfare work, agreed that it is essential to establish the background and environment lying back of each case.

Prof. Frank Bruno of Washington University, delivering the closing address in the afternoon, advocated State rather than local support of institutions for the delinquent and feeble-minded and the gradual abolishment of the Detention Home, substituting the placing of children in supervised private homes.

Other speakers were Mrs. Elias Michael, a member of the Board of Education; Alfred H. Wyman, executive secretary of the Park and Playground Association; Circuit Judge Rosekopf; Dr. William Nelson; Dr. James Lewis; and Miss Eleanor Myers. Mrs. Winifred Alken, chairman of the committee, presided.

Edmonds came to this city four years ago, and is employed as a chemical engineer by the Boston Manufacturing Co. He is about 35 years old, and a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, March 20.

ARDE SIMONE, the Italian sculptor who made the Taft death mask, first idea suggested to him while dining at a restaurant the night of the president's death.

He has been in Washington only two days, in which time he has made busts of Holmes and Stone, General George Wickens and several prominent in official life.

Simone appealed to Justice Stone in getting permission to make a bust. After the family had granted the request, he went to the Taft home. In the presence of Taft's son, Robert, he made the bust within an hour. Simone declared it as one of the most remarkable things he has made.

AT the Taft home on Wyoming avenue during the quiet of the Sunday after the ex-President's death: A sign of activity within the big brick mansion where lies the body of the great man. In front a knot of photographers, idly chatting with a motor-cycle and a beat patrolman. . . . The beat man playfully leans over and pushes the chauffeur's door and the quiet street is shattered by the din of a full "whoop-ee-ee." A small boy, with a yoyo top, joins the listening throng. . . . The chauffeur, who brings the grinding stop. He carries a huge apparently flowers, up to the door is quickly closed after the box is in. . . . On the top step of the Taft the chauffeur stops. . . . One foot in his hand on his head, he calls out to the photographers: "Snap me, to face each other across the conference table.

Briand, before his departure, appeared to be cheerful. "I don't see much use in sitting around a hotel looking out of a window at the weather, even if it is fine," he remarked smilingly. "I shall come back as soon as there is some work for me to do." He declined to comment on conference prospects.

Briand-MacDonald Meeting.

Conference circles are wondering just what significance to attach to the obviously impromptu meeting of Prime Minister MacDonald and Briand at the Hotel Carlton last evening. At the conclusion of the conference, which lasted two and one-half hours, Briand, smiling and jovial, told newspapermen: "We have been talking about means to bring the conference to a successful conclusion, and we are going to apply those means as quickly as possible."

Some observers hearing Briand's words, imputed to them prospective solution of the Franco-Italian naval ratio problem. Others, recalling that the French idea of what would constitute conference success always has been at variance with that of the United States and Great Britain, were dubious.

Experts at Conference.

MacDonald, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Isabel, appeared at the Carlton in evening clothes. MacDonald asked Miss Isabel to wait until he returned. She waited—for two hours and a half—before her father emerged smiling into the lobby. It was understood that, calling upon Briand for a few minutes, he had stayed to take dinner in the Frenchman's room, while his daughter amused herself below. Rene Massigli, expert of the French delegation, and Robert L. Craigie, of the British delegation, were present during the conference.

Reports were current that events had seemed to Briand to be taking a course unfavorable for the French viewpoint, and that back of his decision to visit Paris was a conviction of the futility of remaining here longer. MacDonald, told of this, sought him out, and by some process secured at least a profession of modification in his attitude. For, after the meeting, Briand told newspapermen: "Always, when things seem at their worst, one finds a way out. That is true now."

He refused further to discuss details of the conversation, remarking: "I am in the habit of chattering too much and then I am reproached for it afterward. We have been taking our bearings and experts have been making the observations precise."

Day Off for Delegates.

Work of the American delegation was almost completely suspended this morning. There was nothing further to be done at the moment on the Franco-Italian stalemate, and conversations with the Japanese were suspended pending word from Tokyo whether that Government accepts the tentative agreement which the American and Japanese delegations have worked out here.

Secretary and Mrs. Stimson went automobile riding in the vicinity of Windsor. Ambassador Dawes, Secretary Adams, Ambassador Gibson and Senator Robinson gathered in Secretary Adams' office to swap yarns. Loud laughter could be heard in the halls.

Ambassador Morrow remained in his room with a slight cold. The conference advisers and many of the naval officers planned trips in to the country. An American spokesman smilingly summed up the situation for The Associated Press: "Anyone who wants to today can walk up and down the corridors of the Ritz hearing drums as loud as they desire."

Refuses Statement in Commons.
Prime Minister MacDonald again declined in the House of Commons this afternoon to make any statement on the progress of the naval conference. "No useful purpose would be served by any statement at this juncture," he said.

Asked if the American delegates were in agreement with the British Government as to naval strength to establish parity with the United States, and, if so, would he state the principles and facts of that agreement, MacDonald refused to go into details at this moment. He added that members should not believe nine-tenths of what appeared in the public press. When MacDonald was asked whether he could assure the House that the Government would not enter into any engagements involving sanctions or blockades in the Mediterranean which in any wise went beyond the League of Nations covenant, he replied: "His Majesty's Government have neither contemplated nor discussed any question of sanctions or blockades in the Mediterranean."

Japan Nearer to Decision on Agreement With U. S.
By The Associated Press.

TOKIO, March 20.—Japan's decision whether to accept or reject the tentative agreement of the Japanese and American delegates to the London naval conference was brought closer today after another day of conferences.

The agreement would give Japan 60 per cent of the American total naval tonnage, but some Japanese naval leaders have strongly urged the Government to reject it because it does not concede Japan a 70 per cent ratio of big cruisers.

Conferees today included a meeting of William R. Castle Jr., American special Ambassador, and Baron Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs. Afterward, Premier Hamaguchi summoned Shidehara and Admiral Tamamushi, Vice Minister of the Navy, to his residence. It is understood this conference was with the purpose of reconciling divergent views of the foreign and navy ministries concerning the American proposals. Later, at Shidehara's invitation, Ambassador Castle called at the Foreign Office.

An official spokesman reiterated that any reports of Government decisions or instructions to the London delegates were premature. A decision, he said, cannot be expected prior to the Cabinet meeting

Saturday, and may be delayed until the following meeting, Tuesday. The aged Prince Saloni, last elder statesman, who is consulted only on matters of the most vital import for the empire, entered the picture today. Prince Saloni, who is wintering at Okitsu, southwest of Tokio, dispatched his secretary, Baron Harada, to Tokio to obtain a report of the naval situation from Premier Hamaguchi. After conferring with the Premier, Harada returned to Okitsu.

Charged with Laziness—

Guilty Simply of Acidity!

More than one man today is misjudged and unjustly penalized by cause of a not understood physical condition rather than any lack of willingness or ability.

So many of us are only half our selves, only fifty percent efficient because we are victims of an insidious condition of acidity. That persistent tired feeling—that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system.

Acidity is brought on by our unnatural eating, excessive smoking and irregular hours. It impairs digestion, and causes fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines and drags us down physically and mentally.

A remarkable new corrective of acidity has been developed by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house in Germany.

This new, improved magnesia comes in the form of small white tablets called Magnesia Oxids, which do not have to be chewed, but may be swallowed whole.

Magnesia Oxids, upon contact with the acid in the stomach, generate nascent, or active, oxygen. Now active oxygen, as any doctor will tell you, when generated within the digestive tract does just the things required for acidity. It stimulates the secretion of the alkaline mucus. It checks the putrefaction and fermentation in the gastro-intestinal canal. It exercises a stimulating effect upon the activities of the intestinal walls and aids the movement of the bowels.

All three effects are necessary to the true relief of acidity and Magnesia Oxids supply them in a perfectly natural manner.

5-Day Acidity Test

See for yourself how much acid has to do with your run-down condition and that persistent feeling of tiredness. Make this 5-day acidity test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxids from Walgreen's Drug Store or any other druggist on our money-back guarantee. Take two after each meal for five days. Note the pick-up in your pep and vigor. Mark the new peace of your stomach and nerves. If five days' test doesn't show you a decided improvement in your health, return the balance of the Oxids to your druggist and he will refund your money.

members to unfair questioning. In reply, Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, categorically denied that any such thing had happened. He stated that the oil lobbyists had voluntarily turned over their papers and records to the committee. He said that no "homes" had been invaded" as stated by Thomas and that no citizen had been deprived of his rights.

Moreover, he read from the testimony of Franklin before the committee to show that Senators interested in obtaining tariffs on sugar and lumber had been approached by the oil lobbyists and asked to vote for their products. He pointed out that Franklin had been asked to suggest the name of any one who had lobbied against the oil duty, and had been unable to do so.

Robinson, who also is a member of the committee, said he agreed with part of Walsh's statement, but he asserted that the demeanor of the committee toward some witnesses—whom he did not name—had been "insulting." Walsh recalled that it was Robinson who virtually accused Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, of falsifying the record of the Senate in placing Charles E. Ryan, agent of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, on the payroll of the Senate Finance Committee during consideration of the tariff schedules.

Norris denounced Robinson. However, it remained for Norris, who is not a member of the lobby committee, to make the most scorching reply to the attacks on it. The gray-haired Nebraskan was white with anger when he got to his feet.

"As I listened to the Senator from Indiana," he said, "I wondered whether I was in the Senate, or down in the courthouse where Doherty is being tried, and where his defense consists of a condemnation of the Senate and its committees. I have not heard anything like it since Mr. Hogan, the attorney for Fall, Doherty and Stewart, denounced the Senate committee for investigating those thieves and robbers and debauchers of public officials.

"How we were denounced; every time the Senate obtained a fact it was accused of 'violating private rights.' Every time it uncovered some new steal it was denounced for 'tyranny.' We heard talk of 'smelling committees' and 'fishing expeditions.' But the Senate caught Fall, it caught Sinclair, it caught Doherty and Stewart, and it recovered the public property that had been stolen. That is what this ungodly, disreputable organization known as the United States Senate accomplished."

"Talk about 'sovereign citizens!'" exclaimed Norris, scornfully, alluding to one of Robinson's phrases. "The first sovereign citizen in whose behalf this complaint was made was Harry Sinclair."

No Denial of Trade.

Senator Blaine of Wisconsin addressed his remarks to the criticism uttered by Senator Thomas. "With all his insinuation," he said, "not in one single breath did he deny that a trade was made. In all his petty criticisms and in all his trivial insinuations, he brought up there was not a single denial of the most important matter in this debate, and that is the trade."

Senator Pine kept rising from different places in the chamber to make the point that the amount of money spent daily in Washington by the oil men was not $1500 but only $300. Finally, when Pine bobbed up near Blaine with the same remarks, Blaine shook his arm at him and roared:

"The facts as to the expenditures in this city sink into insignificance compared with the trading in votes on oil for sugar and sugar for oil."

At this point Senator Caraway of Arkansas, chairman of the lobby committee, entered the fray. "I have regretted," he said, "that it was necessary for people's names to be dragged into this matter. What I wanted to do was to make lobbying odious. Men who are perfectly willing to get together and put their money with somebody else's money, and try to control government, whether it is legislative or executive, are devoid of that finer sense of honor that men ought to have; and there is no difference between the man who comes here with his money and wants to buy legislation and Sinclair or Doherty—not a bit."

When a Trade Is Not.

Waterman of Colorado said he had never been opposed to a duty on oil, and, therefore, he had heard nothing of trade. He has never talked with Thomas, but had talked to Pine, and there had been nothing discreditable in the conversation. He had also talked with Wirt Franklin on the necessity of an oil tariff and found him "an intelligent and well-informed man," but nothing objectionable had escaped his lips. Then he declared this policy.

"I have vowed by the eternal," he shouted, "that I will not vote for protection on the products of another State if the Senators from that State will not vote for protection on the products of my State, and I stand by it."

Caraway asked if he would vote for protection on the products of other States if the Senators from those States voted for protection on the products of Colorado, and Waterman answered "yes."

"I call that a trade," said Caraway.

REO announces

THE NEW

Super-Tonner

SPEED WAGON

WITH THE BIG REO CHROME NICKEL ALLOY ENGINE

SUPER in Power, Performance, Long Life and Economy

REO MOTOR CAR COMPANY, world-leader in high-speed, low-upkeep, long-lived commercial transportation, now announces as a new and outstanding development—

The Super-Tonner Speed Wagon

This new thoroughbred addition to the Speed Wagon family is a Super Speed Wagon in every sense of the word:

- SUPER—because it will increase the revenue from your business—
- because it will increase the radius of your profitable business—
- because of its operating economy—
- because of the low depreciation, due to its long life—
- because its big motor gives it more power, more speed, faster acceleration, than is ordinarily found in trucks of nominally the same rated capacity—
- because it provides greater riding comfort for the driver—
- because it gives cushioned passenger-car riding qualities for fragile loads—
- because its springs scientifically combine strength with resilience.
- because of the greater strength of axles, of gears, of springs, of frames and structural parts—
- because it is safer with the world's best and safest brakes.

The increased speed and agility of this Super-Tonner—comparable only with that of the most modern passenger cars—cuts down time schedules; makes more stops and starts possible in a given space of time; increases your normal radius for reaching and holding new, profitable business—thus increasing your revenue.

As a result of its long-life—a Reo characteristic—operating costs and depreciation will be extremely low.

The Super-Tonner is powered by a big 6-cylinder engine with 268.3 cubic inches of piston displacement—developing 30% to 40% more power than the ordinary one-ton truck is built to stand. It offers 30% greater road speed—15% faster getaway.

Reo engineers have developed and provided springs for the Super-Tonner that successfully combine strength with resilience. These far stronger, easier-acting springs, combined with big balloon tires in front, give cushioned riding, ease for driver and sure protection for fragile loads.

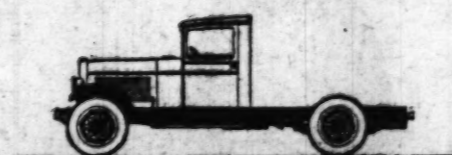

In every part of this Super-Tonner you will find amazing strength. It has 25% stronger rear axles, gears, frames and structural parts than are usually found in a one-ton truck.

The world's greatest brakes, Reo 4-wheel, 2-shoe, internal expanding hydraulics—protect driver, public and load. The Super-Tonner has 25% larger braking area than is customary in one-ton trucks. Its surprising ease of steering also adds to safety.

REO MOTOR CAR COMPANY, Lansing, Michigan

We want you to see this outstanding Super-Tonner Speed Wagon—whether you are in the market for a truck or not. Drive it—put it to any and every test. It will completely change previous ideas you may have had of one-ton trucks. Come in or phone.

Many factors that could possibly contribute to the low life and economical operation of the Speed Wagon Super-Tonner have been included. Chrome nickel alloy iron cylinder block—with seven times the wear-resisting qualities of ordinary cast iron; new low expansion alloy pistons—each outlasting a ordinary piston; 12-bearing crankshaft; full pressure lubrication; tapered roller bearings are used in the chassis—for long longer life than ordinary bearings. So in complete them are a further assurance of long chassis life.

THE wisest investment is always the one that has lasting worth. This is especially true of the investment you make in your home. It pays to protect it against depreciation in every way that you can. For this reason, Mr. McLaughlin and other noted bankers advise you to build for permanency, with the best materials.

Copper flashings, gutters and downspouts, Brass or Copper pipe and solid Brass or Bronze hardware and lighting fixtures give lasting, trouble-free service. They cannot rust. They do not depreciate in value or service.

The slightly higher initial cost of these rust-proof materials is always more than justified by the long-term, maintenance-free service that they render.

The Building Service Department of the COPPER & BRASS RESEARCH ASSOCIATION, 25 Broadway, New York, will be glad to advise you without charge about the uses and proper application of these metals.

VETERINARIAN KILLED BY RETIRED FARMER

Shooting at Gilman City, Mo., Occurs When Men, Both 70, Meet on Street.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
GILMAN CITY, Mo., March 20.—John Lindsey, veterinary surgeon, 70 years old, was shot and killed here yesterday afternoon by George Cramer, retired farmer, also 70. Acquaintances of the two men said the shooting was the outcome of long standing differences. Cramer gave himself up to the Gilman City Marshal.

According to stories related by witnesses the two men met near the post office where Cramer drew a heavy caliber revolver. Dr. Lindsey started to run and was followed and shot at by Cramer. The first two shots struck the victim in the body. The third and fatal shot was fired in a drug store where Dr. Lindsey ran for refuge. It struck squarely between his eyes.

The spot where he died was a half block distant from where the first shot was fired. Immediately after the shooting Cramer walked across the street and surrendered to local officers who took him to Bethany for arraignment.

Five years ago Cramer charged deception had been used by Roy Lindsey, St. Joseph attorney and son of the man who was killed today, in obtaining a deed to 40 acres of land and that this was a part of a plan to defraud him of his farm. Soon afterward he fired two charges from a shotgun at the Lindseys as they drove past his farm. Both were wounded and for several weeks the condition of the younger Lindsey was serious. This took place in Daviess County and when Cramer was tried at Gallatin he was acquitted. On each of the two bonds required of him there were more than 300 signers. A suit over the title to the 40 acres of land still is unsettled, having recently been sent back from Supreme Court for a new trial.

The night of March 13, the Cramer residence burned and the elder Cramer probably was saved from death by the arrival of neighbors who roused him from sleep. Today was the first time Lindsey and Cramer had met since the fire.

Behind the Screens

The Latest News and Gossip of the Film Actors in Hollywood Appears in the Daily Magazine of the Post-Dispatch Every Tuesday and Thursday and in the Sunday Drama Section.

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.

TIME was, and only a year or so back, that the trend in screen leading was distinctly toward the beautiful. Looked then as if the exotic in celluloid mankind would soon be confined to davenport daffodils, and one wounded George Bancroft would not eventually remain the sole male picture star with hair on his chest. But, like fashions in plus-fours, bath salts and home refrigeration, another cycle has rolled upon us, and we are approaching an era of he-men once again. The public taste has reverted to open-air types, two-fisted lads so brawny and brave, such as George O'Brien, Jack H. Hany, Richard Dix, Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe. And we're pleased at the announcement of the contemplated starring of both Fred Kohler and Jack O'Connell, neither of whom could or would boast one faint suggestion of ethereal beauty.

THE American Legion fights in Hollywood Friday nights, are an established institution, renowned for the film-city husbands, ex-husbands and near-husbands, where someone else's gore serves as a municipal purgative. But recently, the Legion is fighting unexpected competition in the vicinity of the city's cafes. On a cold and stormy night recently, John Gilbert and Jack O'Connell staged a personal conflict at Henry's along about the witching hour, with the decision firmly in favor of the ex-hobo. And now comes word that a reporter for one of Los Angeles dailies "took up the white man's burden" and endeavored to engage in fistfights with Tully in the wee small hours at the Brown Derby, a food emporium which figures as one of the most productive possessions of Wilson Mizner, well-known humorist who chanced also to be in the party. No particular harm was done, excepting the arrival of a bevy of patrol wagons and millions of the law, according to witnesses.

Speaking of Gilbert, who is said to have felt the onslaught of the microphone more disastrously than others, he has come out flat-footedly and in stentorian tones announced that published rumors to the effect of his joining Charles Chaplin in a noiseless picture corporation are entirely nonsensical and that he has no intention of leaving M-G-M's protective embrace. Apparently some press agent spoke out of turn or something, but it made a good story.

CHESTER CONKLIN, long a Paramount comedian, was screen-famous for the waisus mustache that he wore. It was at once his trademark and his omen of good fortune. The mustache was a cloth and crepe counterpart of one he once had seen on the upper lip of a Milwaukee baker for whom he had worked as a boy. He had worn it as a circus clown, as a Keystone cop, and as a featured comedian after success arrived. That mustache went with Conklin everywhere, safe in an old tobacco tin that just fitted his hip pocket.

And Maurice Chevalier, Paramount's gay-headed star, seems too much the boy to be worried about luck and the fates. But when he came to Hollywood from Paris he brought with him the black-banded and flat-crowned straw hat that, worn with a satin-lapelled dinner suit, had come to be an integral part of French life as it is lived along the boulevards of Paris. Chevalier wore the hat in his first American picture, "Innocents of Paris." He wore it again in "The Love Parade," one more in "The Big Pond," and he is using it now as he makes his starring appearance in one of the song numbers of "Paramount Parade." He is inviting no misfortune.

SIGNS that movie producers are becoming adventurous are visible in their recent output. A few of the mills which have turned out as fast as their wheels could grind, the flimsy stuff of girly-girly musical comedy, are flitting with the box-office now in ambitious productions which paint no sunshine on the clouds of life.

These are pictures with meat in them, stark stuff. The sensational success of the stage's "Journey's End," a play which leaves no doubt in the spectators' minds about war, may have been responsible for the present effort to offer fare of the same grim color to the movie public.

"Journey's End" has been micro-phonized already, and another company took Arnold Zweig's novel, "The Case of Sergeant Grisch," had it on the talking screen

with unflinching fidelity to the original tale.

There is no comedy relief, and scarcely a smile as the story proceeds, incident by incident, to the certain fate which usually attends Chester Morris, whether he play "Gricha" or another character.

"A LL Quiet on the Western Front" another war novel, has not been given a happy ending by "having Germany win the war." The German youths around whom the story centers, played by Lew Ayres, William Bakewell, Russell Gleason and others, meet the same end in the talkies as awaited them in the book.

Then there are other pictures which, to a lesser extent, depart from the conventional movie story. "Seven Days' Leave," adapted from a James M. Barrie play, has no conventional romantic interest, and Gary Cooper in the end meets death.

"Men Without Women," although done with a certain box-office touch, has no women in the cast, and is grim melodrama. And that widely read underworld novel, "Louis Rietz," which is now running in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is being filmed with an ending less compromising than its author's.

All of which should be encouraging to those who have complained that the screen was a timid thing.

SUPERSTITIONS are frequent among players of the stage and screen. To most actors and actresses luck is a very definite thing. With it no chances are to be taken.

For this reason it often is found that successful stars cherish some token of their ascendancy; some garment, some article of purely sentimental value, which to them is the harbinger of their good fortune, the reason for their being where they are instead of what they were.

Often these bits of precious property are articles of dress which they wore in the part that marked the turning point of their professional career. Almost without exception the career in general of every well-known stage and screen player is the same. First there was a period of study and of struggle; then came a part that appealed to the public taste; the rest came easily.

When Leon Errol, one of the foremost pantomimic comedians of the day, first arrived in New York in 1910, he bought a pair of Congress gaiters as part of his comedy costume for an eccentric dance he had originated. Congress garters have elastic inserts in the side, and these were too large for him. Consequently, when Errol danced his dance at the Jardin de Paris, he seemed to have no control of his feet or ankles and the "collapseable leg" dance which made him a Ziegfeld Follies star almost overnight inadvertently was created.

Leon Errol has used that same pair of Congress gaiters for 26 years. They carried him through the six or eight editions of the Follies in which he has appeared; through "The Century Girl," "Gaily," "Louis the XIV," and all the rest of his show business. He is using them now for his work in Hollywood; several comedy numbers in the forthcoming novelty, "Paramount Parade."

To Errol these shoes have become his "gravy," and he refers to them by any other name. "They brought me the gravy," he explains.

In to Stay

Castors that are always falling out of a piece of furniture when it is moved are a nuisance, but they can be put in to stay a while by first removing the caster, then pouring melted paraffin into the opening, and as it starts to set, forcing the caster into its place. Allow it to harden well before placing furniture back on its feet.

BEST ANECDOTES OF THE WAR

Amusing and Dramatic Incidents Told by Post-Dispatch Readers

He Didn't Come Back.

By C. A. SAWYER
Corporal Sixth Marines.

THE sun rose nice and clear this morning, and there was not much shelling going on at the Belleau Wood. We were lying there in our fox holes, talking over what we were going to do when we started our "pup tents" somewhere in Berlin, for we all figured on going there sooner or later. Not one of us thought of ever getting hurt, for we had been in some difficult places before, in the three months that we had been in the front line trenches.

We were all in the best of spirit, when the Captain came along with an order for us to get up the top. As soon as the Captain went by, the color in my buddy's cheeks all left and he looked very pale. He came to us: "Boys, I am not coming back with you this time. Something tells me that this is my last time over."

We tried to cheer him up. We told him his pockets would be full of souvenirs when we gained our objective. But he still told us that he was not coming back with us.

As the zero hour approached we prepared to form our waves. Everybody but him was eager for the time to come. The zero hour arrived and we started. He says: "Remember what I told you." We had not advanced 25 yards till he was shot twice, once below the heart, and as he fell back another bullet went through his heart.

Noon at Midnight.

By EDWARD FRANK
Naval Mine Base 18, Inverness, Scotland.

ON the Caledonian Canal at Inverness, Scotland, the loading of supply barges for the mine layers out in the harbor, was away in charge of a grizzled, weather-beaten Swede, chief boatswain's mate. By the number of "hash marks" (service stripes) on his arm, he had served nearly 40 years.

Everyone was going at a good clip, as this was a rush job. In the midst of this bustle, an orderly approached and handed "Old Andy," as he was familiarly called, an order which stated to see that the ships were all loaded by noon of that day. Andy read the order, stuffed it in his pocket and moving among the men, shouted "Come on, you fellows, ye gotta get these

Several of the men looked up and, in charge of one of the gangs, spoke up: "Say, Chief, we'll never get them loaded by noon."

"We won't," bellowed the Chief, "Shnap out of it—we git dem loaded by noon if it takes till 11 o'clock tonight."

PRIVATE FLETCHER reported to the Captain one morning and said he had a letter from home saying his wife was very sick and asked for a five-day pass. The Captain said: "Fletcher, I had a letter from your wife asking me not to grant you any more passes. She said when you were home you got drunk, abused your family and broke up the furniture. What do you say to that?"

Private Fletcher said: "Sir, the Captain and I are two of the darndest liars under the sun. I have no wife."

Not a Military Matter.

By HENRY WILLYARD,
Company E, 138th Infantry.

THE Colonel was military and required the newly arrived recruits to be likewise.

He was everywhere, directing, advising, in his dominant manner, expecting the impossible from raw recruits, who did not register very high in the military. Being raw in military did not necessarily mean raw in mentality.

One day the Colonel confronted a sentry and asked: "What would you do if you saw a battisn approaching across the parade ground?"

"Report to the infirmary for a mental examination sir," the sentry answered. The answer must have been correct, for the Colonel shortly moved onward on his rounds of inspection.

Just an Incumbrance.

By T. M. SMITH,
Transport "President Grant"

THE writer served on board the transport "President Grant" during the World War.

On one trip out of Newport News, Va., we had on board about 4000 Negro stevedores recruited in Mississippi. About 2500 one morning they were all on deck in mass formation. Suddenly the general alarm sounded and simultaneously the ship's guns commenced firing at an object resembling the periscope of a submarine.

Going by a line of these Negroes on the way to my battle station I saw one Negro throw his mess kit overboard with the exclamation: "Ge wad frum me, mess kit—I don't need you no mo'!"

English Understood.

By WILLIAM W. BLOSS, Company K, 130th Infantry

I was Saturday and the weekly dose of fresh beef and horse meat had just arrived at the butcher shop in the little French village where we were quartered. The shop was filled with civilians as another soldier and I entered, hoping to buy something that was different from our army menu.

We waited patiently for our turn and finally a very nice looking French girl came to us with a query which we took to mean "What do you want?"

Muster my best French. I asked, "Harvey you eat?" She must have understood that I was asking if she had eggs to sell and her lengthy reply no doubt was in the negative.

Turning to my companion, I said, "I wonder if she would sell us a beef steak." She started us with the comeback, "No, we ain't got no beef to sell to soldiers. We ain't even got enough for our customers."

In further conversation we learned she had lived in Chicago for 10 years, returning to France at the outbreak of the war so her father and brothers could join the army.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Edited by Dr. Iago Goldstein.

John Hunter

HE was the man in the history of medicine whose names stand out brighter than that of John Hunter. His work forms some of the very foundation stones of modern medicine.

He was endowed with that rare genius which enabled him to cut at once to the very heart of the problem.

After a time Hunter captured the beast. To his surprise he found both had grown equally, and that the one whose main artery had tied off was apparently as well nourished as the other.

Suspecting that the knot had slipped, he operated on the animal's aniler once again. He discovered that the main artery had indeed been well tied off and that no blood came through it to the horn. But, and this was the important point, nature had proved equal to the task imposed upon it by Hunter's experiment. The blood required for growth and nourishment of the aniler was brought to it by little arteries which had enlarged under the stimulus of necessity.

This observation Hunter applied to the benefit of man.

There is a large artery in the hollow of the knee which serves as the main avenue of blood to the leg. Some times the wall of this artery becomes weakened so that it is liable to break and cause the sufferer to bleed to death.

Hunter, however, profiting by his experiment on the deer's aniler, merely tied the artery above and below its weak spot and nature re-established circulation through smaller arteries now grown larger.

Use tender cooked beefs and hollow them out to make a cup. Fill with chopped apples, celery and pecan nuts and on top of each place a tiny ball of cream cheese. Serve on crisp lettuce with French dressing, using one beet to a portion, the best resting in a circle of the chopped mixture.

GRAPELADE

THE HEALTH and stimulation which result from living in the great outdoors is the quality of "Canada Dry." Vigorous as the sun-tanned men and women who are the sportsmen of this country, this fine old ginger ale is the sportsmen's beverage.

"Canada Dry" has basic excellence. Its very foundation is "Liquid Ginger"—which we make from selected Jamaica ginger root by a special process. This process is exclusively controlled by us and, unlike any other method, retains for "Canada Dry" all of the original aroma, flavor and natural essence of the ginger root.

It is demanded in great hotels and clubs. In London, Paris and New York it has won the approving nod of connoisseurs. In countless homes throughout this country and Canada this fine old ginger ale appears on dinner tables, is offered to friends, is served on many occasions. Do you know the thrill, the exhilaration, the keen, cool refreshment of drinking "Canada Dry"?

GRAPELADE

It's the fresh juicy fruit part of luscious Concord grapes, cooked down to a velvety smooth spread. Nothing added but pure granulated sugar. Delicious! Gives children, and grown-ups too, those body building minerals they need, with a flavor that satisfies hunger. So easily digested that even invalids delight in it. Insist on Welch's—least expensive pure fruit jam you can buy.

LOUIS BERETTI--Gangster

By Donald Henderson Clarke
Author of "In the Reign of Ruchstein"

The galloping story of the career of a juvenile enemy of the law--Born in the throes of a Chinatown battle, successively thief, dope peddler, bootlegger, gunman, Louis finally turns on his "mob" and crashes the front page as the heroic avenger of society in a sensational kidnaping.

CHAPTER 10.

Police men, four of them, looked at the glasses on the shelf side the sink and on the shelf over the sink, and one of them said, as he picked one of them up and sniffed at it:
"I suppose you serve soda in these."

"That's our medicine department," Louis said. "If a customer wants to drink from drinking too many oranges, we give him some soda in one of those."

"What's this guy been doing, drinking?" a policeman asked, pointing to Eddie Briggs.

"Why don't you ask him?" Louis responded. "I ain't responsible for what my customers do before they come in here."

"Hey!" said the policeman, shaking Eddie Briggs. "What are you doing in here?"

Eddie rolled a pair of fishy eyes up at his interrogator and said:

"I want a roll of your best chicken wire," and he started to go, and pitched over on the floor, and went to sleep, and no paid any more attention to him for a few minutes, while the man pounded the walls, and moved boxes and barrels, and went to the cellar. After hammering and swearing around for 15 or 20 minutes they went out.

"You better be careful," one of them said as they went out.

"I am," said Louis.

And as soon as they were gone, he took his two pint bottles, went out through the fruit store and into the apartment next to it, where his father and mother and Rosa were living until the country would be finished. And within two minutes he was back with both bottles filled.

"I'm not going to do it this

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

LOUIS BERETTI, born in the turmoil of a battle in the streets of New York's Chinatown, grows up as a boy with an antipa-thy to policemen, school teachers and "snitches." His pal is Big Italy. Pa and Ma Beretti are parents who want their children to grow up as decent Christians. Ma, particularly, is most devoted.
Louis begins life as a thief in a small way. When the war comes he is among the first to enlist and forms a friendship with Bill Federien, an aristocrat, who has a pretty sister, Louise. In France Bill and Louis find the war quite entertaining, but Bill is killed and when it is all over, Louis returns home, takes up bootlegging and runs a speakeasy back of his father's fruit store. Eventually the place is visited by the prohibition agents.

thoughtfully upon Red McLaurin, who was nervously fingering a whisky glass. Big Italy was smoking a cigar that looked too large for his thin face, and when he removed it momentarily from his tight-lipped mouth, a big diamond flashed on the little finger of his left hand.

Big Italy was expecting to do a bit in Atlanta for getting caught while transporting a load of junk across the border from Canada, and he had been wondering how the Federal Narcotic Squad had gotten wise to him. Big Italy had been looking thoughtfully at Red Mc-Laurin for many years. He certainly did talk a lot to the dames.
Louis Beretti probably was the best friend Red had. He had persuaded Big Italy on many occasions through the years that Red was on the level, and keeping his nose clean. No one except Louis perhaps knew what it had meant for him to champion Red. Big Italy never acted in haste, but he was a man who followed his intuitions and his information. Unlike the courts, he didn't need any legal evidence to decide who was guilty and who was innocent.

He had just heard that afternoon that a girl whom Red had been sweet on was a cousin of Sandy McNish, head of the Narcotic Squad, and he had about made up his mind once and for all about Red.

Checking back in his mind, it didn't seem so odd to him that the police had had special information about the truck load of silk that Kid Quick and Fatty Cook had stolen, and for which they had been arrested and tried. The information against them had been good, but their lawyer and their alibi had been better. That had happened when Red was going with the same girl
as Cray of the Inspectors Staff. It didn't look so good.

"No, you can't keep your nose clean, Red," Big Italy said finally.
"And you're going to get yours
so watch out."

RED paled through his freckles, and the tan that had come from his job as truck driver.
He started nervously and looked at Louis. But the matter now was out of Louis' hands. He was fond of Red, liked him better than anyone outside of his family, except Big Italy, of course. But now it was between Big Italy and Red. Red could move away, and move away
fast, or he could shoot Big Italy right there and then, or later if he was especially lucky, or he could get bumped off himself. Someone was going to get his now.

Big Italy put the cigar back in his mouth, but did not take his eyes from Red.

"Aw, Italy," Red said, "what's your tonight? I ain't done anything. I always been on the level with all you guys ever since we were kids."

Louis Beretti continued to contemplate the few drops of whisky

in the bottom of his glass. He tilted the glass from side to side, apparently fascinated by the oil
which remained to run more slowly to the bottom after the rest of the liquid had flowed away. He had been afraid of this for years, and he confessed to himself that Red had earned what was coming to him.

"But he's such a nice guy--except for the dames," Louis was thinking. "He's got to tell the skirts everything. But what the hell! There was nothing a fellow could do about it."

He looked at Red then with a cold stare in his dark brown eyes, and a lack of expression on his face that affected Red more than anything even that "Big Italy" had said. Red glanced around, and everyone was looking at him strangely, he thought.

"I'll get out till you're all feeling better," he said trying to smile.

He was moving toward the door
when it opened and Freddy South, lately of Chicago, and two of his lieutenants walked in.

"Hello," said Freddy. "Hello

DAILY STORY FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

Where Winter Goes

THE Little Black Clock led John and Peggy to the place where Winter was packing up his things. Lady Springtime was ready to take his place.
The Clock had turned the time ahead a little, and already Lady Springtime had taken a few trips.
Then Winter had come back to have a chat with her so that the people had said that the Spring was being very backward, and that it seemed as if Winter would never go.

"I'm ready to leave now," he cried, as he picked up his great suit cases and boxes and packages filled with his wintry belongings.
His snowy helpers and workers were helping, too, but no sooner would they get started than Winter would come back again.
But at last he actually started,
and the Little Black Clock took John and Peggy to an airplane he had engaged and they followed Winter as he traveled along. Winter traveled in a huge balloon made by no less a friend of his than the Wind.

As they flew along little icicles formed on their plane and it was bitterly cold. But the Clock had brought warm clothes for the children and they were comfortable.

Greeting Winter were creatures dressed in snowy, icy costumes, and he settled right down, wearing a huge, snowy costume himself, as though he had never been away.
"Well," he said, "I couldn't stay around where I was much longer.
I had to come back home."

For Winter's home was far, far,

far north, where it was always snowy, but during his own season of the year he could wander where-ever he wished.

"I'm so glad to know he has a nice cold home when he likes it so much," said Peggy, shivering a little.

"Yes, it wouldn't be much fun for him to have to suffer through the summer heat!" said John. And they said good-by to Winter now,
at home with all his relatives.

Dangerous Business

Never try to put pieces of ice into the thermos bottle when preparing ice water for the night. It is apt to go off like a gun. Make the ice water first and then pour it into the jug. The ice that goes in with the water will not hurt the bottle, but it certainly will when it goes in alone.

She took another woman's place —in the arms of a sightless lover!

"THEO, dear, do you love me?"
Noel whispered to the girl beside him. His sightless eyes stared vacantly past her. How could he know in his blindness that she was not the woman he loved—but an impostor
who had taken his sweetheart's place?

Frantically she realized the folly it had been to agree to take Theo's place! What strange fate had given her voice the same tone as Theo's—enabling her to deceive this blind, devoted man?

"Yes, Noel—I love you." Each word was a dagger in her heart. She was saying "I love you!"
for a woman who hated this moment loved another man!

"Come to my arms," Noel said.

In a moment she was in his embrace. She wanted to cry out—"I am not Theo—but I love you!" His kisses stifled the words...
What happened when Noel regained his sight? She had lied to him—deceived him.

Would he regard her as a cheat... an adventurer? Could she ever win the love of this man whom she had tricked? Or would she lose him forever? Read "Shining Through the Dark" by Ethel Donohoe, the absorbing romance of a girl who dared to accept the love that belonged to another woman! Don't miss this heart-searching story, complete in this week's issue of Love Story Magazine.

Many thrilling stories in March 22nd issue

What are your love problems?

What would you do if you fell in love with a man and later found out he was married? Suppose your sweetheart left you—how could you win him back?
These are the kind of problems that Laura Alston Brown answers every week in her helpful department—"The Friend in Need." Whenever problems are vexing you—Miss Brown is ready to aid you at all times.

"THE ROSE SHADOW" is a complete novelette by Edna Eringer. How a courageous girl, accused of theft and deserted by the man she loved won out against tremendous odds is the theme of this dramatic love story.

Suppose you fell in love with a man who had only two years to live. What would you do? This is the amazing situation which faced one girl in Barbara West's thrilling story, "The Heart Dies."

Don't miss "The Right Kind of Love," "Anything for Her," "The Rumble-out Mind," "Waiting for Love," "The Girl With the Ferns." You'll enjoy Ruby M. Ayres' fascinating new serial novel, "The Secret Witness," and the first part of Marylin Oakley's "The Husband She Bought."

If the surface of your stove seems rough and ugly, it is probably from an accumulation of stove blacking. Sandpaper the surface until it is smooth all over, then give it a fresh coat of polish and it will look like new.

A flour dredge is an absolute necessity in the kitchen equipment if you want your gravies to be smooth.

Play Day Is Planned For Women's Meeting

ST. LOUIS—The "blue sky" open-air reception will entertain the 10,000 club women expected to attend the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Denver June 5-14.

A play day on June 11 will be one of the high spots of the convention. Club women will cut loaves from wheat papers and debates to be whisked in autos over high mountain passes.

A memorial service in Red Rock bowl will be held Sunday, June 11. Denver's civic center will be the scene of the "blue sky" reception on the opening night.
The $2,000,000 foundation fund, community service and furthering cordial relations with Latin American countries will be the chief subjects on the program.

The Hope Chest

The prospective bride would be wise if she would dip a sheet in strong bluing water, dry and then spread sheet over the white linens in her hope chest. It will prevent them from turning that ugly yellow during her engagement.
